President Beaming Over Tax Slash

Johnson Signs Tax Bill; Cut Benefits 80 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson signed into law Wednesday night a tax cut for most individual taxpayers and corporations and proclaimed it "the single most important step we have taken to strengthen our economy since World War II."

Johnson acted on this biggest tax cut in the nation's history within a few hours after the Senate passed the measure, 74 to 19, ending its year-long, sometimes stormy voyage through Congress. It reduces taxes for 80 million individuals by one-fifth, on the average, and for 550,000 corporations by about 9 per cent starting with 1964 returns.

Several Pens

Johnson used several dozen pens to sign the bill and handed them to the onlookers with small talk. Noting that the late President John F. Kennedy fought for the measure, he said he was taking the first three pens to Mrs. Kennedy and her two children, John Jr. and Caroline.

Mrs. Johnson and daughter Linda Bird, 19, watched the ceremony along with Senate and House members of both parties.

Forty-five minutes after the signing, Johnson and Mrs. Johnson arrived at the Kennedy residence in Georgetown, along with many of the late President's Cabinet members and close associates and their wives.

After the signing ceremony in the East Room of the White House, Johnson spoke to the nation in a hautily arranged television-radio broadcast, saying:

"We have made this bill an expression of faith in our system of free enterprise. The ability of this tax bill greatly to improve the vigor of our economy rests in your hands as individual consumers and businessmen.

"If American enterprise responds to this new opportunity with increased investment and expansion — with new production and new products—with the creation of new jobs—then the tax cut will bring greater abundance to all Americans. Then the federal government will not have to do for the economy what the economy should do for itself."

Johnson called this "a bold approach" to stimulate the economy, chosen over a higher level of government spending.

But Johnson said more important is what a strong U.S. economy means to preservation of freedom in the world. There is "no asset more precious to freedom, and no guarantee more vital to liberty than a robust American economy," he asserted.

Bi-Partisan Support

The President noted that although the tax cut was "inspired and proposed by our late, beloved" President John F. Kennedy, it was passed with support of both Democrats and Republicans in Congress.

The measure zipped through the Senate quietly in the final stage. The oratory and most of the formalities were completed after House passage Tuesday.

On passage, 53 Democrats and 21 Republicans voted for the tax cut. It was opposed by 10 Democrats and 9 Republicans. The House had passed the bill Tuesday by a similar wide margin.

Impact March 5

The first impact of the long-awaited tax cut will be felt on March 5, when the withholding of income taxes by employers drops from a basic rate of 18 per cent to 14 per cent.

The tax cut for individuals varies widely. It ranges from 15.5 per cent up to 100 per cent for low - income taxpayers. Those with very low or very high income get the biggest breaks.

Tax Changes

Here are some of the other major tax changes:

—The 4 per cent credit on stock dividend income put into law in 1954 is cut to 2 per cent this year and repealed in 1965. But the amount exempt from taxation is doubled to $100 for single persons and $200 for married couples, effective this year.

—Persons who itemize deductions no longer can include auto tags, drivers' licenses, state taxes on liquor, tobacco and similar excise levies. State and local income taxes still can be listed, as can real estate, general sales and gasoline taxes.

—Child care deductions for working wives are liberalized.

—Persons with large incomes bunched in a year can use a formula of income averaging to avoid the high bracket rates they have had to pay.

—Taxpayers over 65 can deduct all medicine and drug costs, not just those exceeding 1 per cent of gross income. They can waive capital gains tax on sale of their homes up to a $20,000 price and a portion of the price above that.

—Deductions will be allowed for moving allowances for newly hired employes and for non-reimbursed expenses to old employes.

—Repealed is a 1962 rule that a person can deduct only the cost of the business part of a combined business-pleasure trip if it lasts more than one week.

—An indefinite period will be allowed to write off capital losses against income. The limit is now five years.

—Deductions for accident or theft losses will be denied below $100.

UN Mediates Cyprus Crisis

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The six nonpermanent members of the U. N. Security Council took over the mediator's role in the Cyprus crisis Wednesday. Their chances of getting a settlement looked slim.

The council president for February, Carlos Alfredo Bernardes of Brazil, acting for the six, set up separate interviews with the main parties to the dispute — Cyprus, Britain, Greece and Turkey.

He did so after the non-permanent members — Bolivia, Brazil, Czechoslovakia, the Ivory Coast, Morocco and Norway—held a two-hour informal meeting at the Brazilian mission to talk about how to arrange a compromise.

Diplomatic sources, reporting all this, remarked that "the six are sort of a mediating bloc," doing all they can to bring about an agreement among the four countries mainly concerned.

But indications were that the four still were far apart on whether any council resolution should uphold both the independence and territorial integrity of Cyprus and also the 1960 treaty of guarantee authorizing Britain, Greece and Turkey to take action if necessary to preserve the status quo in that island republic.

Britain and especially Turkey were reportedly insisting that the treaty should be mentioned, since both have interpreted it to mean Turkey may send troops in to protect the Turkish Cypriot minority from the Greek Cypriot majority.

Greece and especially Cyprus were still demanding that the treaty should not be mentioned, precisely because the Greek Cypriots running Cyprus fear that any such mention will be used to justify Turkish invasion.

That was understood to be the main issue Secretary-General U Thant had in mind when he told the Security Council on Tuesday that he had run into an impasse in his week - long efforts to find common ground among the parties.

Thant made clear that he would not send an international peacekeeping force to Cyprus without the consent of the 11-nation council. He had suggested such a force, and also a mediator to help the feuding Greek and Turkish Cypriots work out the island's political future.

Broken Legs In Vogue In Skiing Family

BRADFORD, Pa. (UPI)—The three little Pecoras probably can claim some sort of record, but they aren't smiling about it.

Instead, they are hobbling around on crutches these days with broken legs suffered in skiing accidents.

First it was Rosanne Pecora, 7. On Dec. 30 while on the ski slopes near here she fell and broke her left leg.

The next day it was brother Patrick's turn. Only he broke his right leg. He's 9.

Then this month, 14-year-old Maureen Pecora got into the act by spilling on skis and breaking her leg — also the right one.

There are three other Pecora children — Susan, 16, Christopher, 4, and Andrew, two months.

Mama and Papa Pecora have their fingers crossed.

Hilsman Leaves U.S. To Get Tough In South Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The resignation of Roger Hilsman as assistant secretary of state raised speculation Wednesday about possible further shakeup in the political - military high command directing the costly—and lagging—war against Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

Hilsman's resignation followed by one day disclosure that responsibility for the direction of U.S. policy in Viet Nam had been taken from his office of Far Eastern affairs and put into the hands of a newly created, high-level task force directly under Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Presidential Praise

President Johnson, accepting Hilsman's resignation, praised his "courage and dedication" in government service. Hilsman said he wanted to return to university teaching as soon as possible. He declared there was no policy dispute involved in his decision to step down.

Nevertheless events of the last few days added up to evidence of determination on the part of Johnson, Rusk, and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to try to intensify the war against Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam by tighter organization at the top in Washington and perhaps by other personnel changes and shifts in strategic concepts.

McNamara is making another of his frequent trips to the Far East next week. He will have an opportunity to look into the command organization there as well as operations in the field and relations between the U.S. structures.

New Deputy

Gen. Paul D. Harkins, commander of the 15,000-man U.S. force training and supporting South Vietnamese troops, has now been in Viet Nam about two years. That is twice the normal tour of duty. He was given a new deputy, Lt. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, late last year. Official Washington is hearing new rumors that Harkins will be replaced later this year.

Administration officials also privately acknowledge some uncertainty about the future plans of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge. He was Republican nominee for vice president in 1962 and has been pushed in some areas as a potential presidential aspirant this year.

About three weeks ago Rusk decided to adopt in the Viet Nam situation the task force system, which has sometimes been used for handling other trouble spots. William H. Sullivan, a special assistant to Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman, was named this week to head the task force committee.

Key Figure

Hilsman, 44, had been a key figure in Viet Nam ever since he became assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs a year ago.

91 Year Old Just Loves Beer

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) —Mrs. Harriet E. Brookes, 91, proved to the satisfaction of a brewery Wednesday that she has drunk 53,290 pints—or 200 barrels—of their beer.

Mrs. Brookes, who said she had downed an average of two pints a day since she was 18, was adjudged winner of a "loyalest drinker" competition.

Her reward: free beer for the rest of her life.

Scranton Shuns Backing Of Northeast State Bloc

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton rejected Wednesday a proposal that Pennsylvania join with a bloc of northeastern states to support him as a joint favorite son candidate at the Republican presidential nomination.

"I'm not interested," the governor said at his weekly news conference when told that Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio had made the proposal as a device to block the nomination of either Gov. Nelson Rockefeller or Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and swing the nomination to Scranton.

"I don't know anything about it and I am not interested in blocking anybody from the nomination," said Scranton.

"I am not interested in running for any national office.

"I feel strongly that the Pennsylvania delegation should make up its own mind."

He also said he had not been contacted by Rhodes or anyone else concerning the third force proposal, which originally envisioned the consolidation of delegations from Ohio, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

"I'm sure that if he (Rhodes) were interested in doing anything in conjunction with Pennsylvania that he would discuss it with me," Scranton added.

Asked for comment on a published report that Scranton would have to make his move for the presidential nomination by May, if he wants it, the governor said:

"It might be right about that, but I haven't given any thought to it because I don't plan to move."

The governor also said his staff is still under orders "to abstain from promoting my candidacy."

Scranton also contended that it is proper for his administration's officials to use state funds in promotion of his proposed unemployment compensation revision program.

He termed "just plain ridiculous" complaints by labor leaders that the administration is improperly spending state money by backing the UC plan.

Truax Says Some States Rather Stay Unpledged

HARRISBURG (AP) — Craig Truax, Pennsylvania Republican chairman, contended Wednesday the trend across the nation is for uncommitted delegations to the San Francisco GOP convention next July.

"In several key states there is a desire on the part of many leaders to participate in a decision on the presidency from an uncommitted position," Truax told a newsman.

Truax is a strong supporter of Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, who has consitently maintained he wants Pennsylvania's 64-vote delegation to remain uncommitted.

Truax was asked his view on establishment of a "pool' of uncommitted state delegations which could boost a candidate or block either of the two major announced GOP prospects, New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater.

The state chairman said he would not favor any "stop" movement, but contended that "the trend for uncommitted delegations is the development across the country."

He declined to pinpoint other state leaders boosting the uncommitted delegation idea.

"The reason for interest in uncommitted delegations is the current uncertainty—even in the south-as to how this will come out," said Truax.

Backers of Scranton make it plain that they feel the Pennsylvaia governor's best chance of getting the nomination would be at a wide-open convention.

Truax told a Harrisburg newspaper earlier that Scranton must make up his mind by May whether he is actively going to seek the GOP nomination.

"I think by May very serious political leaders all over the country are going to tell Bill he's got to get going and that he has to put together his support prior to the convention," Truax said.

In another development Truax said he would back U.S. Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., as the Pennsylvania representative on the GOP Convention Platform Committee. He said he regarded Scott as "well-versed and can handle himself" in platform give-and take. Scott was on the committee at the 1960 GOP convention in Chicago.

Truax also said the main platform-writing problem probably would center on civil rights.

$70,000 Fire Wrecks N'fld Firm

NEWFOUNDLAND — A fire that fed on exploding lacquer and lumber wrecked a toy factory near Newfoundland yesterday, while firemen stood by because there was no water supply.

Officials of Playtools, Inc., operator of the plant, placed the loss at more than $70,000.

Ten employes escaped unhurt.

Company officials said the fire probably started when a defective fuse box ignited lacquer fumes and residue in a spray room.

Charles Ehrhardt, chief of Greene-Dreher Fire Co., said that the alarm was received at 12:45 p.m. and when firemen arrived the roof of the building was completely gone.

In addition to not having any water supply firemen were unable to get near the building due to explosions.

Ehrhardt added that the firm has two names, the other is Child's Craft Equipment, and they both have a New York City address.

He said that 15 men and three trucks were dispatched to the scene.

Fencing Begins In Rights Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted 54 to 37 Wednesday to keep the House-passed omnibus civil rights bill on the Senate calendar and ready for further action.

The vote was a victory for the strategy of the Democratic leadership in dealing with the hotly controversial legislation.

The roll call came on a motion of Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., to table and thus kill an appeal of Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., from a presiding officer's ruling that the measure must remain on the calendar.

Russell, the leader of the Southern forces heavily opposed to the bill, had made the point of order that the measure must go to committee.

But Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., presiding at the time, rejected the point of order.

Russell then was able to win a recorded test on the matter by making his appeal.

Immediately after the vote, Mansfield asked unanimous consent to send the bill to the Senate Judiciary Committee with instructions to report it back to the Senate not later than March 4.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N. Y., objected.

Mansfield explained that he thought there had been some legitimate argument that brief committee hearings should be held.

There were some indications that Mansfield might renew his request later. Javits said he thought the request was "precipitous" and that members ought to have more time to study the situation.

Businessmen Disagree On President, Policy, Mood

EDITOR'S NOTE — Businessmen say prosperity depends in part on a good relationship between business and government. In a series of interviews across the country, AP business news writer Darden Chambliss asked leading businessmen how they thought government should act toward them. He reports his findings in the following story:

By DARDEN CHAMBLISS
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — How should government act to inspire confidence among American businessmen?

When government finds the answer, it will have taken a large step toward continuing prosperity.

New jobs and nice fat payrolls are born when businessmen confidently risk money, buy new equipment and build new plants.

Businessmen say they don't know themselves what puts them in a buoyant mood. Business leaders interviewed on a coast-to-coast tour indicated they can't agree on the type of president, the general government policy, or the specific practices that give them confidence.

But they can pretty well agree on two crucial requirements:

1. Predictability — "There are so many unavoidable variables in business," says pipe-puffing Kenneth F. Julin, president of Leach Corp., aerospace components maker in suburban Los Angeles, "that if you throw in the additional variable of government attitudes, it just about brings operations to a halt."

2. Mutual respect and understanding—"Business doesn't ask any favors," says Leonard F. McCollum, president of Continental Oil Co. "It would just like a clear understanding of the role it plays in the economy."

Two Qualities

These two qualities, these businessmen indicate, can be far more important than conventional divisions between Democrat and Republican, conservative or liberal, spender or non-spender.

The comments might help explain why the spoken word was enough to splinter business confidence in 1962—when the late President John F. Kennedy blasted U. S. Steel for raising prices — yet why confidence sturdily withstood such a calamity as the President's assassination Nov. 22.

Businessmen say the steel clash shook up businessmen because it raised disturbing questions for the future: Where the President might crack down next, what method and agencies he might employ to exert pressure. Also, they felt, it indicated that he had little respect for businessmen or understanding of what makes business tick.

Assassination Impact

Businessmen then point to the different impact of the tragedy last November. Despite the fact that it was a total shock and that it came at the crucial time when businessmen were approving new budgets, business barely faltered. The stock market plunged but then shot up quickly.

Ernest Marsh, president of the Santa Fe Railway, recalled in his Chicago office a board meeting Nov. 26, the Tuesday after the Friday assassination. Up for consideration was a $100-million capital expansion program. It had been drafted well before.

"We thought it over carefully," Marsh said, fingering a cigarette lighter. "President Johnson had announced he would continue previous policies. We had a virtual pledge he was going ahead with plans for tax reduction."

"We decided," Marsh said, "that these comments indicated no drastic change under the new regime. So we acted without change and granted the appropriation for the $100 million."

Board Sessions

Businessmen said this sort of thing apparently happened across the country. Other boards were reassured by their assessment of Johnson as a familiar and predictable quantity. Business confidence held up strong.

This same kind of assurance is what business needs on a running basis, these businessmen said.

The two qualities of predictability and understanding are important too, these businessmen say, in making sense out of business attitudes on government spending and government regulation.

"It's not so much what government does that alarms us," says Cris Dobbins, president of Ideal Cement Co. in Denver, Colo. "It's how it does it."

"I don't think businessmen mind regulations if they are spelled out. But what worries us is when they are left open to interpretation by people far down the line," Dobbins said.

"One of the worst things in recent years has been the doubt as to what rules really are, and what they will be in the future."

New Frontier Turmoil

Gardiner Symonds, an honor graduate of the Harvard Business School and now chairman of sprawling Tennessee Gas Transmission Co., says:

"What's wrong with a great deal of liberalism is the confusion it brings. The New Frontier crowd had everybody in a turmoil."

"The liberals fundamentally don't believe in business making money. Business can't cooperate with them because they frankly don't want business to run with the ball and succeed," he said.

Businessmen are concerned over the federal deficit, the growing debt, the high cost of financing the debt, and what they see as threats to future fiscal soundness.

Federal Customer

They also are aware of the role of the federal government as a star customer with its budget of $100 billion a year.

John Madden, president of James B. Clow & Sons, Inc., Chicago producer of cast iron pipe, says "a high level of economic activity depends on continued government spending in some manner."

Madden straightened his gold-rimmed glasses and said "If you get a real, balance-the-budget type of government that would be for cutting out everything unless we had the money to pay for it, I think we'd have quite a recession to face."

Continental's McCollum, a member of the Business Council of top industrial leaders that advises presidents, says that except for the far left or the far right, any administration can win business confidence.

"A president should not be probusiness. He must not be or anti- anything, as head of a government," McCollum says.

"Business doesn't expect a palsy-walsy relationship, just a hard, clear, understanding and mutual trust," he said. "If you get a healthy in-between position, that gives you all you need."

Appalachian Report Lauded

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Scranton administration renewed its qualified endorsement Tuesday of a presidential commission's recommendations for the economic development of the Appalachian region.

Gov. Scranton and Commerce Secretary John K. Tabor, in a memorandum to U.S. Undersecretary of Commerce Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., chairman of the President's Appalachian Regional Commission, said:

"While we do not concur with all of the recommendations and observations made in the report, we believe that the report generally offers a promising basis for accelerating the growth and development of the human and natural resources in Appalachia."

The commission, created by the late President John F. Kennedy, is composed of representatives from all the states along the Appalachian Mountain chain.

Miss Blatt's Backing Grows

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Walter M. Phillips, chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, Wednesday endorsed Miss Genevieve Blatt for nomination as the Democratic candidate for U.S. senator in the April primary.

Phillips said Miss Blatt, state Secretary of Internal Affairs, is "the ablest" as well as "the strongest candidate."

Miss Blatt is to attend the ADA's 16th annual Roosevelt Day dinner here Saturday night where she will deliver her first campaign speech.

The Democratic Party's candidate for the nomination is state Supreme Court justice Michael A. Musmanno.

Also in Miss Blatt's corner is Democratic Sen. Joseph S. Clark.

Bar To Vote On Rights

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Bar Association members will vote on a five-point program on equal rights drawn up by its committee on civil rights, Chancellor Theodore Voorhees announced Wednesday.

3 Miners Killed In Shamokin

SHAMOKIN, Pa. (UPI) — Three miners were killed and one was injured Wednesday in a blast caused by explosives at the large Glen Burn mine here.

The dead men were identified as Lawrence D. Erdman, 50; Steven Halkovich, 52, both of Shamokin, and Joseph Deroba, about 45, of Trevorton.

Daniel Gidaro of Mt. Carmel was injured in the blast. He was treated at Shamokin State General Hospital.

State mine inspectors and colliery officials were investigating to learn the cause of the explosion. The mine, one of the largest in the anthracite region, employs 475 workers. The men had been working in the No. 14 slope of the mine when they were killed.

Scranton Team Pushes UC Bill

PITTSBURGH (AP) —Gov. Scranton's unemployment compensation task force told a group of businessmen Wednesday that the present law needs immediate revision.

"We feel that it is absolutely necessary to amend it (the unemployment compensation law) this year—not next year, not five years from now," Lt. Gov. Raymond P. Shafer said.

Shafer and several other state officials have been traveling throughout the state urging passage of the governor's unemployment compensation proposals.

More than 100 businessmen from seven Western Pennsylvania counties attended the meeting.

Secretary of Labor William P. Young and Secretary of Commerce John K. Tabor also spoke.

UC Chief, Union Leader Clash Over Jobless Bill

HARRISBURG (AP) — Scranton administration and labor representatives, called before a Senate committee to clarify their views, disagreed sharply Tuesday on the impact of the governor's proposal to revise the unemployment compensation program.

Jack B. Brown, director of the unemployment compensation program, and Harry Boyer, president of the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO, debated the controversial proposal in the first face-to-face confrontation on the two principal opponents.

Labor, said Boyer, is completely opposed to the governor's program, now before the Senate Labor and Industry Committee. The program would rebuild the fund by increasing employer-paid taxes and restricting benefit payouts.

The day-long session occasionally became heated as one Democratic senator and Brown several times seemed on the verge of losing their tempers during a question-and-answer period.

Recessed

Chairman D. Elmer Hawbaker, R-Franklin, recessed the hearing until 4 p.m. Monday when Secretary of Commerce John K. Tabor and Paul C. Moomaw, a lobbyist who helped write the original unemployment compensation law, will be called to give their views.

Hawbaker deferred a decision on a request by Democratic members of the committee and by Boyer that spokesmen for the U.S. Department of Labor and the Jobs for Pennsylvanians Committee, a businessmen's group, be called in.

Brown and Boyer disagreed most sharply on the number of persons who might be affected by the proposals, if approved in their entirety, and on how best to describe the financial condition of the fund.

Brown said:

"We don't deny this is going to have impact, but no one can predict how many persons will be affected. We're not going to play this numbers game. Too many assumptions are required."

'No Numbers Game'

Boyer, obviously annoyed by Brown's terminology, replied:

"This is not a numbers game. There are real human beings involved. It is a staggering number of people involved. You can't save $55 million any other way."

Boyer said the administration should be able to produce figures showing the number of persons involved because "somebody did some real sharp arithmetic in estimating how much money this will save."

Boyer also challenged Brown's statements that the unemployment compensation fund is in "disrepute" with employers who might locate in Pennsylvania because "it is badly out of balance."

The union leader asserted that no business would allow the unemployment compensation fund alone to stand in the way of a decision to locate in Pennsylvania.

Rooney's Mail

Bible Reading Edict Spurs On Letters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although it has been eight months since the Supreme Court made its last ruling on prayers and Bible reading in public schools, Pennsylvania congressmen generally report large amounts of mail on the subject.

A sampling shows that practically all the mail opposes the court's ruling restricting the use of the Bible in school and the reading of prayers in classrooms. Much of the mail urges a constitutional amendment to overcome the ruling.

The office of Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., reported it received more than 7,000 letters on the subject last year. In the first two months of 1964, the office received 500 letters.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said he received as many as 700 letters weekly until about two weeks ago.

The mail on Bible reading and prayers in schools apparently keeps coming regardless of what the issues are before the Congress, according to some indicators. Rep. Herman Schneebeli, R-Pa., said that during the debate on civil rights, Bible reading and prayer mail was four times greater than civil rights mail. Schneebeli said he now gets 20 to 40 letters a day on the subject.

An aide to Rep. Richard S. Schweiker said the mail on the subject "keeps coming." Two of Schweiker's constituents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Schempp of Roslyn, filed one of the suits which the Supreme Court decided last June.

Schweiker's office reports at least one letter from Schempp opposing the attempt of some religious groups to obtain approval of a constitutional amendment to permit prayer and Bible reading in public schools.

Rep. George M. Rhodes, D-Pa., said he has received between 3,000 and 4,000 letters and postcards since last spring. It's still a leading issue in his office.

Some of the Pennsylvanians who say prayer and Bible reading in public schools is still the leading issue in their mail include Reps. Willard S. Curtin, R; Fred B. Rooney, D; Paul Dague, R; J. Irving Whalley, R; John P. Saylor, R; and Thomas E. Morgan, D.

Reps. James D. Weaver, R, and William E. Moorhead, D, reported the issue is among the leading issues in their mailbags.

New FBI Chief For District

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe David Jamieson, the new chief of the FBI in eastern Pennsylvania, says that for the bureau there are no big or little cases. All are investigated with equal vigor.

Jamieson, a 45-year-old lawyer with an athlete's build, leaned back behind his big desk and said:

"We kind of lose sight of the big cases. It's a responsibility to be carried out whether the case is large or small. The cases all have the same ultimate end. We investigate them properly and bring them to a proper conclusion."

Jamieson took command of of the 125-man FBI staff on Monday, succeeding Frederick A. Frohbose, who was transferred to Miami. Jamieson came here from Savannah, Ga., where he was also special agent in charge. His wife and their three sons and a daughter will remain there until school is out.

"In the meantime I've got to try to find a house," he said.

Jamieson has been with the bureau since his graduation from Baylor Law School, Houston, Tex., in 1941, a career he says has been "a very rewarding one. As far as I'm concerned I've enjoyed every minute of it."

Besides Savannah, he's represented the FBI in Washington, Denver, Houston, San Francisco, Little Rock, Albany, N.Y., Louisville and Knoxville, Tenn.

He was born and raised in East Texas and he still speaks with a Texas drawl. He smokes a pipe, but said "I'd smoke a cigar if someone gave it to me. I might even now and then buy one." But he doesn't smoke cigarettes.

What's the biggest crime problem today in America?

Jamieson leaned forward and in a firm voice replied:

"I think the biggest problem, the reason we've got so much crime is we've got so many people who don't respect law and order. If we can find a way to getget them to respect law and order in themselves and in their fellow citizens, we can solve a lot of the problem."

Does this mean he thinks American morals are riddled?

"That's for a pastor to say," he said.

Jamieson steered away from saying how greater respect for law and order should be instilled in Americans.

"Basically," he said, "it's a moral problem. I just won't comment on how it should be done. That's another field."

He displays the FBI man's usual reluctance to discuss any of his cases. Asked to name his biggest, he smiled and replied, "I haven't worked on any big enough to have any outside interest."

People In The Spotlight

Johnny Burke, 55, songwriter who won an "Oscar" for the lyrics to "Swingin on a Star" died in his sleep in New York Tuesday.

Among Burke's other hit songs were "Pennies from Heaven," "Annie Doesn't Live Here Anymore," "It Could Happen to You," and "I've Got a Pocketful of Dreams."

Dr. Sidney Wise, associate professor of government at Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster, characterizes the nation's urban areas as "the educational and cultural centers of our country."

The college professor said the nation's urbanized and industrial areas are "the mainstreams of new thought, the basic sources of the nation's strength."

James L. Peters, 50, of Middletown, had a harrowing brush with death this week. The mechanic was partially sucked into the intake of an F-101 jet aircraft. He is reported in "apparently satisfactory" condition in Harrisburg Hospital.

Credited with saving his life is a radioman, Curtis Baer, who was working in the vicinity. Baer pulled Peters from the intake before he was sucked in entirely.

Grace Metalious, author of the controversial "Peyton Place" died Tuesday of a liver ailment.

The 39-year-old woman gained prominence when her earthy book of a New England town became a best seller in 1956.

Dr. Joseph F. Fazekas of Silver Springs, Md., was named administrator of the Pennsylvania Health Department's alcoholism program.

Newspaper revenue totaled $3,681,400,000 in 1963 as compared with $3,623,100,000 in 1961, a gain of 1.6%. Newspaper advertising led all other media accounting for 29.7% of total dollar volume.

The Lenten Story

BY WOODI ISHMAEL

THE MAN WITH THE PITCHER

"Go into the city," Jesus said to two of His disciples, "and there will meet you a man bearing a pitcher of water: follow him. And wheresoever he shall go in, say ye to the good man of the house, the Master says where is my guest chamber that I may eat the Passover with my disciples? And he will show you a large upper room furnished and prepared: there make ready for us." (Mark XIV:13-16)

From these cryptic directions, the two disciples found the room where Jesus was to meet with his twelve Apostles for the Last Supper. 2-27

School Drop-Outs Below Par Locally

By Gil Murray
Daily Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Stroud Union and East Stroudsburg Area High Schools yesterday released figures on student "drop-out" rate showing more than two per cent of their students failed to finish high school. This was below the average across the state and nation.

The figures were compiled by guidance counselors Raymond Serfass of Stroud Union and James Werkheiser of East Stroudsburg.

The late President John F. Kennedy said in his 1963 State of the Union message to congress that 26 million Americans will reach their sixteenth birthday during the sixties.

Of these, he said, approximately 10 million, or 40 per cent of this number will be school dropouts.

The state average for school dropouts in a year is 2.7 percent. For the year 1962-63, 2.1 per cent of the students in grades seven through 12 at Stroud Union left school for reasons other than transfer. During the same year at East Stroudsburg the figure was 2.7 per cent.

At Stroud Union during 1961-62, 20 students dropped out of a total enrollment of 1,298, in grades seven through twelve.

In 1962-63, the 2.1 percentage came from 29 students dropping out of a total enrollment of 1,357. So far during the 1963-64 school year 23 students have dropped from an enrollment of 1,422 for a percentage of 1.6.

Will Increase

Serfass said this figure will increase before the end of the school year in June.

In analyzing the 23 students who have dropped out this school term, Serfass' report showed 15 students left school because of age, to accept and seek employment, and because of failing grades.

Pregnancy forced five girls to leave school; two students got married and one joined the Army.

Werkheiser's report was a detailed study of drop-outs at East Stroudsburg and showed:

"From September, 1961 to February, 1964 a total of 61 students dropped out of school. Of this total, 18 were forced out by pregnancy, while the remaining 43 withdrew voluntarily.

"The average age of the drop-out was 16 years and 10 months; the youngest was 14 years and four months, and the oldest was 19 years and 10 months.

"The mental maturity testing revealed 64 per cent of the drop-outs had an intelligence quotient under 100 and 32 per cent under 90. The Iowa Basic Skills Test revealed the drop-out to be eight months below his grade level.

Bulk From Borough

"The bulk of the drop-outs were residents of the Borough of East Stroudsburg. The borough had 48; Smithfield Township, four and two each in Porter, Price and Lehman Townships.

"Definite identifying characteristics of the East Stroudsburg drop-out are:

"Poor grades: 57 per cent of the drop-outs had repeated at least one grade.

"Apathy about grades: evident in both the student and the student's parents.

"Absenteeism: the drop-outs were absent for almost double the time of the average student who goes on to graduate.

"Non-graduate parents: 80 per cent of the parents of drop-outs were also high school drop-outs, nearly 50 per cent of the parents never attended school beyond ninth grade.

"What do East Stroudsburg drop-outs do?

"During the 1962-63 school year 27 students drpped out of school. Of this figure 22 were traceable and questioning revealed the following information:

"Twelve of the 16 girls who withdrew are married. Also one boy is; only nine of the 22 are employed at this time; only one of the 22 is still holding the same job he got after leaving school; none of the drop-outs indicated earning more than $1.30 an hour at any job.

None Skilled

"Also none of the 22 has held a skilled job, and none of the 22 have continued their education in any way.

"Positive steps which can be taken to lower the drop-out rate in the East Stroudsburg Junior-Senior High School are:

One — Earlier identification in the elementary schools.

Two — Hiring teacher-assistants from the community to enable the elementary teacher to work more closely with the slow learner.

"Three — An invited involvement of the parent of the potential drop-out with the school program and their child's progress.

"Four — Employment of additional guidance personnel in the junior-senior high school.

"Five — Decreasing the size of classes in the junior-senior high school.

"Six — More flexible scheduling in the junior program.

"Seven — Adding a late-bus route to enable the out-of-town slow learner to remain after school for extra help.

"Eight — Broaden the junior-senior high school club and activity program to include activities of interest to the intellectually slower student."

Scout Leaders Course Set

EAST STROUDSBURG — Another of the continuing series of Scout and Cub leaders training classes will be held in the East Stroudsburg High School, Monday night, March 2, according to James Werkheiser, Pocono District Scout Leadership Training Committee chairman.

Four classes will be conducted; Cub Pack Program Planning in Room 202 starting at 7, Explorer Officers Training in Room 203 starting at 7, Scout Junior Leaders Training in Room 201 starting at 7, and Scout Advancement in Room 201 starting at 8:30.

Trainers for the sessions will be Bob Anderson, Bill Sheeley, Herb Ayers, and Bill Vincent. Through lecture, demonstration, and discussion, Scout Troop and Cub Pack unit leaders, assistant leaders, and committee personnel are brought to a better understanding of their responsibilities to the unit and the development of a better program for the scouts and cubs.

Werkheiser also announced that a training session in Outdoor Camping is planned for the weekend of May 15-16 at an overnight campsite located along the Pocono Creek, near Tannersville.

Sophomores Push Bible Petitions

NESCOPECK, Pa. (AP) — Work of 50 zealous sophomores who are attempting to bring Bible reading and prayer back to the public schools is resulting in a heavy daily volume of mail at Nescopeck High School.

Petitions to the House Judiciary Committee, to allow the proposed Becker amendments to the U.S. Constitution to reach the floor for action are now circulating in man states with pupils of more than 100 schools already securing signatures of citizens.

The number grows daily and this has all been the result of the Nescopeck sophomores.

Church groups and veterans groups have also been writing to this anthracite community for copies of the petition prepared by the pupils.

The move has attracted the criticism of Ed Schempp, of Abington, father of the boy who was a central figure in the action leading to a Supreme Court decision banning required Bible reading in public schools. Schempp informed Chet Dole, athletic coach and advisor to the pupils, that he wanted to go to Nescopeck and speak on the matter.

Dole said, "It has been decided that Mr. Schempp will not be given the opportunity to use our stage and people to hear his opposition to returning God to our schools."

WATCH FRIDAY RECORD FOR NEW SIZZLER

One Man's Vote

On Feb. 17, the U. S. Supreme Court ruled, 6 to 3, that "as nearly as is practicable one man's vote in a Congressional election is to be worth as much as another's."

In the majority opinion, Justice Hugo Black held that the inequity between the 272,154 voters in a rural Georgia Congressional district and the 823,680 voters in the urban Congressional district of Atlanta was unconstitutional and open to correction by a federal court.

This historic decision, with enormous political and legislative ramifications makes perfect common sense, but the historical and constitutional arguments advanced by the majority justices were sharply contested by Justice John M. Harlan.

The majority held that the 14th amendment to the Constitution which provides that "representatives shall be apportioned among the several states according to their respective numbers. . ." justified the opinion that every vote for a member of the U. S. House of Representatives should equal every other vote.

Justice Black quoted American statesmen at the Constitutional Convention of 1787 to support the majority opinion an dended his argument with this statement:

"While it may not be possible to draw Congressional districts with mathematical precision, that is no excuse for ignoring our Constitution's plain objective of making equal representation for equal numbers of people the fundamental goal for the House of Representatives. That is the high standard of justice and common sense which the Founders set for us."

Justice Harlan disagreed. He disputed Justice Black's reading of the Constitution and of history.

Justice Harlan pointed out that at the Constitutional Convention many statements were also made for a limited monarchy, for property qualifications for voting, and for a restricted democracy.

As the saying goes, you can quote the Devil to prove any point.

The dissenting justice then argued that since the Constitution leaves "the times, places and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives" up to the states and the Congress, there is no constitutional question in the Georgia case and therefore no reason for the Supreme Court to review the subject.

We agree with the majority on the "justice and common sense" of its decision. But we also agree with Justice Harlan that there are grave questions about the arguments from the Constitution and especially from history used to buttress the majority opinion.

'I'm The Greatest'

Cassius Clay has overthrown the American standard of modesty.

We are all taught not to boast after winning and warned never to boast before a contest is decided, because we might lose and have to eat our words.

That aspect of the American character come partly from Christian humility, partly from native modesty and partly from common sense—you never know when you might lose. We are supposed to be modest, not arrogant winners; dignified, not peevish losers.

Only politicians and professional sportsmen are allowed to predict victory. Everyone understands if they lose. But the rest of us don't dare say we will win.

That is why many Americans secretly admire Cassius Clay today. He broke all the rules, he upset all the standards of public behavior, and he won.

"I'm the greatest. I'm the greatest. I'm the greatest," he said after winning the world heavyweight boxing championship from 7 to 1 favorite Sonny Liston Tuesday night.

And he added immodestly, "I'm the king of the world. I upset the world. I am the king."

"Eat your words," Clay said to newspaper reporters and sports editors who said he would not last three rounds. And they did.

The facts of life and human falability and our own limitations prevent most of us from predicting or gloating over victory. We all suffer too many "technical knockouts" every day.

And while we may secretly admire Cassius Clay today, we know quite well that this hopped-up, loud-mouthed, boastful fighter will not be on top forever.

Comment Of The Day

"We could have chosen to stimulate the economy through a higher level of government spending. Instead we chose tax reduction and at the same time we reduced government spending."

—President Lyndon B. Johnson in a speech to the nation on the economy and the tax cut last night.

George Dixon

Leery Of Leaks

By George Dixon

WASHINGTON — President Johnson daily admonishes his White House aides not to leak things to the press. The President doesn't want the hired help to leak in competition with him.

This should be understandable. A President should have some prerogatives that he can call his very own.

Besides, when LBJ does the leaking, he feels he can keep it within bounds. He doesn't have such sublime faith in his minions. He's leery that they will leak too much and the market will become glutted with leaks. He feels that the way to maintain a high value on leaks, to keep them above parity, so to speak, is to make them a one-man monopoly.

In the leak business, Mr. Johnson does not feel that competition is the life of trade. He wants to do the trading himself. People who have been trading with him of late, in a laud for a leak, are going around Washington with the smug look of satisfied customers.

Why shouldn't they? The middleman has been eliminated, and the leaks now go direct from producer to consumer.

Those who don't get the presidential leaks, of course, are not consumers. They're just consumed.

Among certain people there is a growing disposition to be critical of presidential leaks. The certain people on whom this disposition is growing are largely those who occupied a sort of most favored nation position in the leak trade under the previous administration.

They attained great stature in their own eyes, if not in the eyes of rivals, as a consequence of this most favored nation role. They felt it was only their due that it continue under Johnson the way it was under Kennedy. This was their great -- sometimes almost their only -- reason for being. They became outraged beyond belief when President Johnson began alternating between most favored nations of his own, and a common market.

The ex-court favorites try not to blubber openly about being banished. They strive to keep a stiff upper lip, which usually makes them look as if they'd shaved with liquid cement. They express their outrage by pretending to feel the president is imperiling his own fortunes, and those of the nation, by exchanging old favorites for new.

Dash it all, let's not be so subtle about this! The old Kennedy favorites are really miffed, and trying to cover it up with hypocritical tsk-tsks of concern for the welfare of the country.

Every day, and sometimes oftener, one of them attempts a heartthrob piece about the honeymoon between the President and the press being over. It's weird how even the most politically celibate of them have become authorities on honeymooning.

The honeymoon may be waning, as the ex - favorites lament, but you'd scarcely guess it from the rapturous looks of the new Johnson leak set. Those in the leak continue to go around with ecstatic kissers.

They insist that the honeymoon will wax, rather than wane, in fervor, as long as the President is able to hold onto a leak monopoly. The only trouble is that, at heart, they're trust busters.

They keep encouraging the White House staffers to leak in competition with the President. Goodness knows where it will all end if President Johnson and his leak-prone aides get into cutthroat competition.

Meanwhile, Washington is in the throes of debate as to what constitutes the top status symbol.

Chief of protocol Angier Biddle Duke told the Woman's National Democrat Club the other noon that the ultimate in status symbols now is to be invited to the LBJ ranch in Texas.

The Pennsylvania Story

Scranton's Argument

(ED. NOTE: The controversy of the year for Pennsylvania unquestionably is the current running battle over whether the Keystone State's unemployment compensation program should be revised. How does Governor Scranton personally feel about it? Here it is without "editorial blue pencil". -- Mason Denison

By William W. Scranton
Governor of Pennsylvania

(Second of Two Parts)

HARRISBURG — Action on reforms to the Unemployment Compensation Law should not be postponed until after the April primary elections. As soon as we believe we have the votes, the bill will go before the Senate.

At the moment we are aiming for a showdown vote in the Senate by March 17.

There has been a great deal of misinformation and misunderstanding over specifically what the revisions I have proposed do.

In this column I will outline why I feel the UC law must be reformed along with how the changes affect employer taxes and payments to the unemployed.

I have called for immediate action because the UC fund is near bankruptcy; the present UC system is keeping plants and jobs out of Pennsylvaia; and benefits paid to legitimately unemployed workers are too low.

Provisions in the UC Bill now before the Legislature will affect employer taxes in these three ways:

1. Increase the taxable wage base from $3,000 to $3,600. This would produce an additional $43 million for the UC fund in the first year.

2. Allow new employers to pay a 2.7 per cent tax rate for the first 18 months instead of the present 4 per cent. This would help attract new jobs for people.

3. Drop the minimum UC tax rate from 2 to 1 per cent. This would benefit 30,000 small employers with low labor turnover.

These three changes would produce a net increase of $35 million for the UC fund in the first year.

Payments to the unemployed would be changed in the following eight ways:

1. Increase maximum weekly payments from $40 to $45. Too many deserving workers receive payments that are too low because funds have been siphoned off by claimants with only occasional attachment to the labor force.

2. Eliminate second round of payments without at least five weeks of intervening employment. Both Kennedy and Johnson administrations have urged states to eliminate the "double dip."

3. Require women furloughed because of pregnancy to work at least two weeks after birth of a child to be eligible for payments. This would prove intention to work.

4. Limit payments of seasonal workers to periods of unemployment during seasons they normally would work. This does not apply to construction workers.

5. Limit total payments to one-half of base year wages. Forty states limit total payments.

6. Limit multiple "step-downs" which allow some people to qualify for compensation who do not have an adequate work record.

7. Deduct the amount of employer-paid pensions and half of Social Security benefits from UC payments made to retired persons. It is not right to expect employers to contribute to pension plans and Social Security and, in addition, to pay up to 60 weeks of UC benefits to retired workers.

8. Increase minimum payments to $15 a week.

Every dime in the UC fund is paid by employers. Workers pay nothing — nor do I feel they should. General taxes don't go into the fund.

Briefly, this is what would happen under the reforms: 45 per cent of claimants would receive higher payments; 30 per cent would continue to receive the same amount; 15 per cent would have reductions because of short or intermittent work records, and 10 per cent would not qualify for a second round of payments.

Johnson Comes Home

Bill Johnson came home yesterday.

It was a far different former Stroudsburg resident who 13 months ago left to join Gov. William W. Scranton's administrative staff in Harrisburg.

The same happy face was there. The humble feeling was evident. And his composure was just as pronounced.

But the man who was educated in the Stroudsburg school system has added a new fresh feature -- polish -- the same attribute that graces the young 'uns who run around the Capitol calling the shots in their respective duties for the head of the commonwealth.

Johnson is now a pro. Perhaps the ingredients were there but only needed a refresher course under the Scranton Administration. Well he got it with plenty to spare.

We heard Bill talk yesterday to the Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club. He didn't say anything that most people did not know. But it was the way he said it that magnetized his listeners.

Solidly Johnson put down the adage that you can take the farm out of the farmer. Johnson went to the city and the city and its intricate well-meaning resources brushed off kindly on him.

This corner is very much interested in the rise of Johnson. We've watched him mature in many walks of life, climaxed by a tenure as president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Actually, though, he was only a babe in the woods then -- a year and a half ago. Today he is a man, an individual Stroudsburg and the Pocono Mountains can be proud to call one of their own.

Basically Bill is a politician. His job automatically qualifies him for this title. However through his own perseverance -- education and association -- he is a human being.

That's what we all are despite off-beat listings in off-beat conversations among off-beat people.

Seniority Prevails

A labor leader went to a matrimonial agency. "Is this a union shop?" he inquired first.

"Oh, certainly."

He picked out a picture of a luscious 25-year-old, and said, "I'll take her."

"No, you have to take this lady," said the manager, showing a picture of a gray-haired woman of 65.

"Why do I have to take her?" thundered the labor leader.

"She," said the manager, "has seniority."

The Allen-Scott Report

Oswald Mystery

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — The most "sensitive" question confronting the special commission investigating President Kennedy's assassination is whether Lee Harvey Oswald was a double agent when he committed this murder.

On this sensationally significant enigma, the probers have directly conflicting testimony.

Both U. S. and Russian authorities have flatly denied the killer was in their employ. At the same time, the commission has indisputable information from intelligence and security agencies of the two countries that they were "in contact" with Oswald on various occasions in the four years prior to the Kennedy slaying.

Following are highlights of unpublished evidence in the hands of the special investigators:

#The Oswald file the Soviet turned over to the State Department reveals that Russian Intelligence and security agents contacted Oswald a number of times between 1959 and 1962—when he was living in the Soviet as an avowed "defector."

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, in an "affidavit," discloses that his agents made "three contacts" with Oswald after he returned to the U. S. All of them, Hoover explains, were wholly investigative. At no time was Oswald in the FBI's employ, nor was money given him.

Former Central Intelligence Director Allen Dulles, a member of the commission, has told the other six members that he has no knowledge of Oswald's acting as a CIA agent. John McCone, present head of CIA, has said the same thing.

State Department records show that Oswald had several meetings with the CIA representative in the U. S. embassy in Moscow. During this period, the assassin was seeking to renounce his citizenship. One State Department cable, No. 234, dated November 2, 1959, reports that Oswald was interviewed by the CIA and other embassy officials.

Mrs. Marina Oswald, 23-year-old widow of the killer, told the commission that Soviet security agents contacted her husband a number of times while they were living in Russia. Under questioning, she emphatically denied that she or Oswald had been KGB (secret police) agents or were "associated" with that organization. Mrs. Oswald confirmed that her uncle is a Soviet "Military colonel," and that she and Oswald resided near him in Minsk.

More Mysteries— One of the curious backstage aspects of the investigation is former CIA Director Dulles' acute sensitiveness about information relating to that agency.

For example: At Dulles' vigorous insistence, certain questions and answers about Oswald's possible training as a secret agent while in Russia were put off the record; that is, they were not transcribed and are not recorded in the testimony.

Throughous the inquiry, Dulles has displayed a militant protectiveness regarding the CIA.

Other mysteries being explored by the commission are:

Where Oswald obtained an apparently steady flow of money, amounting to several hundred dollars, during his frequent periods of unemployment.

How Oswald was able to obtain a passport in New Orleans to go to Russia despite the fact that the State Department had a file detailing his "defection" in Moscow and four years' residence in the Soviet.

This passport, Do92526, was issued on June 25, 1963. In his application Oswald stated he proposed traveling from three to 12 months as a tourist to England, France, Germany, Holland, Finland, Italy, Poland and Russia.

Oswald's original passport, dated September 10, 1959, was numbered 1733242.

His second passport was given him the day after he asked for it, and without the required "name check" for individuals known to be Communist or to have Communist associations. So far, the commission has no explanation for this official dereliction. Authorities of the Passport Division are to be questioned about that.

A senator has given the investigators the name of a Texas attorney who claims to have information about Oswald's being a double agent. The lawyer reputedly learned this from a client who has been operating in Communist circles for a number of years.

He's A 'Humanitarian'

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Demented people, young and old, should be exterminated. Bums, chronically ill and alcoholics likewise. What good is derived from keeping them alive when money is so badly needed for normal people? I have made a study of social misfits and have seen many "rest homes" filled with county and state aid patients who have been ditched by their families. Nobody cares a hoot about them. Some of these people are completely gone mentally. Why keep them at the taxpayers' expense? All people, physically and mentally incapable of contributing to our society, should be done away with. Mercifully, of course. This may sound hard-hearted, but one day this will have to be done. Sign me—

DEAR ABBY: One of my hamsters got loose and we found her in the piano. She was caught in there and must have gotten pretty beat up because, when we finally got her out, she couldn't walk or stand up. I think she broke her leg or her back, maybe. I wanted to take her to the vet's, but my big sister, who drives, thinks it is silly and she won't take us. My mother drives, but she doesn't have the time. If this hamser isn't going to get well, maybe she should be put to sleep. What should I do? I am 12.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Random Thoughts Of A Doctor

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

With a deep sigh of nostalgic regret, patients say, "Where is the old-fashioned family doctor?" He hasn't disappeared. He is right near you.

He no longer makes his house calls in a horse and buggy. Perhaps he now drives a shiny convertible.

He doesn't trade his medical services for chicken, eggs and milk. He buys his own.

But then today's family doctor doesn't use spinach packs for pneumonia. Penicillin is a pretty good replacement.

Today's "general practitioner" embodies all the kindness, warmth and understanding of the old-fashioned doctor. Talk to him and find out. You'll find him willing to help in psychological and social problems in addition to curing your aches and pains.

The loyal patient has a new-fashioned family doctor. The bond between them is as great as ever.

FRIENDLY FEVER

Fever is a friend. When you or your child get an infection, fever is an indicator of a healthy response of your body to that infection. It means that your body is calling on its reserves to fight off the invasion of germs.

With fever comes an increase in the pulse rate, an increase in the fighting white blood cells and an increase of all of the defense mechanisms of the body.

Because fever is, too, a warning signal of infection and illness, it is important to discuss it with your doctor.

CHILDREN NEED LIMITS

"I'm going to run away from home, Mommy. I'm mad with you!"

Rather strong action for a five-year-old.

The mother said, "Wait. I'll go with you."

Oh, no. She would just like Mommy to help pack her suitcase. This the mother did.

Half an hour later, a next-door neighbor discovered the child sitting on her suitcase, patiently waiting at the corner.

"I'm running away!" she exclaimed.

"Well, why don't you cross the street?" the neighbor asked.

"I can't," the little one answered woefully. "Mommy never lets me cross streets alone."

The limits that you establish for your children not only protect them from hazards, but give them the emotional security so important to their development as happy human beings.

ACUTE OR CHRONIC

Let's clarify those terms "acute," "sub-acute," and "chronic."

An "acute" condition describes an illness that suddenly occurs, then is cured after a short period.

A "sub-acute" condition is one that lingers a little longer before it disappears.

A "chronic" condition is one that lasts for long periods of time, may temporarily subside, and then crop up again.

So you see, it's the time factor, not the severity of the illness, that identifies it as acute or chronic. Consulting with your doctor early can prevent many acute problems from becoming chronic.

These columns are designed to relieve your fears about health through a better understanding of your mind and body. All the hopeful new advances in medicine reported here are known to doctors everywhere.

Your individual medical problems should be handled by your own doctor. He knows you best.

Stories Behind Words

by William S. Penfield

Jack

The word "jack," which denotes a device used to lift heavy objects, is an adaptation of the name "Jack," a familiar form of John.

"Jack" was once used much as the name "Mac" is today -- in addressing or referring to a man of the common people, no matter what his real name.

Later, the name was used to denote a male servant or attendant.

When lifting or hoisting devices were invented, a name was sought for them. Since such a contrivance took the place of a servant, it was called a "jack."

County Officials Join In Joint Report Session

By JEFF COX
Daily Record Reporter

KELLERSVILLE — The first monthly convocation of heads of county agencies and the county commissioners was held yesterday at the Monroe County Home — each agency to hear what others are doing.

"The purpose of these meetings, is to let the right hand know what the left is doing, so to speak," said moderator Stuart Pipher, a commissioner.

About 30 people from various agencies heard reports from 13 groups concerning operations for January.

"We would like to have comparisons between this year and last," Pipher said, "when financial statements are given. This way we can all note progress among the agencies."

Those called on to give reports were William Reaser, chief clerk of the commissioners; Warren Loney, county treasurer; Frank Smith, county prothonotary; Mrs. Jeanette Batory, register and recorder; Edward Metzger, sheriff; John Lesoine, of the office of weights and measurers.

Also C. A. Nauman, chief assessor; Howard Doll, veteran's affairs; King Beers, redevelopment authority; Mrs. Horace Butler and Charles Jones of children's aid, LeRoy Dengler of the Mount Pocono Airport Authority, Kathleen Fehr of the County Home, and Dr. John Martucci, physician at the home.

Several visitors were also asked for their remarks.

Lists Accomplishments

William Reaser listed some of the accomplishments of the new board of commissioners during their terms, which began early in January.

He said that the commissioners have instituted appointments on a scheduled basis, initiated insurance studies for county buildings, inspected the Gracedale Home for the Aged in Northampton County, made inquiries about state and federal funds for the proposed Third St. Playground in Stroudsburg.

He noted that they have also hired Ray Saunders to investigate application for county aid, made an on-the - site inspection of the Pocono Mountains Airport, met with the two planning consultants, updated blanket bond coverage for county employes.

The commissioners have also hired a nurse and a practical nurse for work at the County Home, met with Norman Detrick to discuss flood problems on the upper Brodhead Creek, attended the commissioners school in Harrisburg during January, debated Tanite Rd. flooding, and met with officials of the proposed Sheltered Workshop.

"All this was in addition to regular county business," Reaser said.

Loney Notes Figures

Treasurer Warren Loney noted that the county started the year with $212,981 in the general fund. During January there was $42,470.21 in receipts and $70,219.19 in disbursements. Loney said that this left a balance of $185,232.10 in the general fund as of Feb. 1.

Frank Smith, prothonotary, had no report prepared, but said that at the next meeting would itemize fines and costs for his office.

Mrs. Jeanette Batory, register and recorder, said that at the next meeting, she would show how the county is growing on a four - year basis through the number and size of deeds and other papers filed in her office. "I can say generally that we are running ahead of last year, and that our office has grown at least two-thirds in the past five years," she said.

Edward F. Metzger, sheriff, reported that during January there were 19 original writs served by the sheriff, and five executions were returned to the prothonotary's office.

The sheriff transported five persons to other state institutions. There were 47 commitments to the Monroe County Jail and 45 releases. On Jan. 31, the total number of persons housed in the jail stood at 25.

2,198 Meals Served

A total of 2,198 meals were served at the jail, costing 31 cents per meal. The cost of provisions for the month was $684.77, which was high due to stocking of tiems.

Total medical expenditures for January came to $128.

John Lesoine spoke generally on the office of weights and measures.

C. A. Nauman, chief assessor, said that Tuesday he made a trip to Doylestown, Bucks County seat, to study tax assessment procedures.

"It seems we're in the horse and buggy days up here," he said.

He noted that from December to the present, there were 1,405 assessment notices sent and that during 1963, assessed values of the county rose over $3,000,000.

"We have gained $2,684,550 in the last three months since I took over," he said.

"One main trouble at the office is that we can't get ownerships of properties changed as soon as they are sold. This means we bill the wrong people for taxes. We saw how Doylestown overcame this problem, and will consult with certain people to try and institute such a system here," Nauman said.

Nauman said that there was not much increase in deeds with state tax stamps on them from 1962 to 1963. He said that in 1962, 1,902 deeds with documentary and state tax stamps were filed, while there were 1,914 in 1963. "There was a 122 deed increase just in the last four months," he said.

Howard Doll of the veteran's affairs office said his office had 364 interviews at the office during January, and 260 telephone interviews. Twenty-four GI loans were processed, and there were 15 county burials and 15 federal burials. There were 58 pension applications.

Redevelopment Work

King Beers spoke on the work of the redevelopment authority. He said that work is going ahead on application for the Courtland St. project, and that sale of land for the Lincoln Ave. project was being acted on.

He added that the redevelopment office has established files of relocation for families that now live in the area which will become redeveloped.

The East Stroudsburg Citizen's Advisory Board has also been reactivated, according to Beers. The St. Matthew's Cemetery on Crystal St. was discussed. Beers said that the church has been contacted on the feasibility of moving it so that renewal can reach all the way to Crystal St.

Charles Jones spoke on the Children's Aid program. "Forty-nine families were served during January," he said. Forty-two children were serviced outside their own homes, plus 83 children in 16 families under protective service.

Kathleen Fehr reported that there are now 73 guests at the County Home. There were two deaths and two admissions during January.

Total income for the month was $3,733.41, and total disbursements were $7,697.94. Produce from the County Home farm in the form of milk and eggs were worth $702.40. She said that the estimated cost per guest per day came to $6.39.

People who lead vital, dynamic lives mesh their thinking and activities into the whirling gears of today's social, economic and political machinery simply by reading their newspaper.

New Name For County Home Urged

KELLERSVILLE -- Dr. John Martucci of Brodheadsville yesterday asked the convocation of county agency heads at the County Home to "think of another name for the institution."

"We ought to get rid of the name, 'County Home.' Gracedale, the home for the aged in Northampton County, is much pleasanter.

"In view of the new addition that's going up, someone should suggest a better name. We've made a start along these lines by referring to the people here as 'guests' instead of 'inmates.' "

The Monroe County Commissioners have also thought over the choice of a name for the home, and Stuart Pipher said that of all the names suggested so far, "Pleasant Valley Manor," seems to be the best. He also asked for name suggestions.

"Hospital Auxiliary"

Dr. Martucci also said that "We have removed the feeling of a county poor house out here. We are more of a hospital auxiliary or even a small hospital."

The doctor also asked for an arm of the proposed Sheltered Workshop to be established at the home. "Many guests just and wait for eternity. . ." he said, "but they can be productive to some extent and fill their hours with useful work."

The Sheltered Workshop would give employment to physically and mentally handicapped persons in the county.

Dr. Martucci also said that an autoclave — a sterlizer — had been purchased for the home, and that the roving X-ray unit of the tuberculosis society has been asked to make a yearly visit to the home.

He said that predicted amounts of drugs have been put out on bids. Buying in wholesale reduces prices, he noted.

"Pre - examination physicals are done here at the home, now, and clinical histories are also written down for doctors to check. We are now engaged in re-examining patients here to qualify for aid," he said.

"As a result of a visit to Gracedale we will be looking forward to physical therapy here. We will try, when the new addition is built, to have a physical therapist come here.

"I recommend instituting some type of regular dental care. Not only the extraction of teeth, but dentures are necessary so that many of the patients can eat properly.

Flu Shots Upheld

"Contrary to many reports in the press, we have found that flu shots administered here have done a good job in preventing flu at the home," he said.

He added that since he has been put on salary, he makes at least three visits to the home per week.

'Port Hopes To Get FAA's $24,692 Soon

KELLERSVILLE—A $24,692.32 lump of money that has been held up by the Federal Aviation Agency may soon be released to the Mount Pocono Airport Authority, according to R. LeRoy Dengler, authority chairman.

Dengler told county agency heads at a meeting at the County Home yesterday that the money will be released when a strip of old Rt. 611 near the Pocono Mountains Airport is abandoned, and a new access road built.

The FAA feels that planes landing at the airport descend too close to this road for safety, Dengler said, and it must be abandoned.

He noted that reimbursements from the Pennsylvania Aeronautics Commission and the FAA totaling $262,842.31 have been paid to the authority except for the $24,692 from the FAA.

The strip of road is in Coolbaugh Twp., and Robert Meckes, chairman of the Coolbaugh supervisors, said last night that "paperwork is underway to have the road abandoned."

Dengler said that another stipulation is that an access road from the airport to the present Rt. 611 must be built to take over the function of the old road.

This road would be approximately 660 feet long and cost from $1,900 to $2,100.

Agreed To Build

Meckes said that Coolbaugh Twp agreed to build this road providing it was reimbursed for the cost.

The county commissioners of the last administration—including John Lesoine, Willard Quick, and Stanley Raedr—had agreed to reimburse Coolbaugh for the road.

"We agreed to pay for the cost of the new road out of the liquid fuel tax account. Road building is the only thing these funds can be used for," John Lesoine said last night.

He said that a county aid application was approved.

Bids for building of the new road were submitted to the Coolbaugh supervisors some time ago, according to Meckes, and Shiffer Bituminous Service Co. of Stroudsburg was the low bidder.

An official of Shiffer Bituminous said last night that to his knowledge, "the contract has not been let as yet." He confirmed that Shiffer was low bidder for the job.

At the County Home meeting, Dengler said that because of the delay of the $24,692.32, the authority had to use funds earmarked for other purposes to repay a bank loan, now reduced to $54,694.39.

He said that three years ago, when the county commissioners agreed to give the airport authority an extra $2,500 per year —to $10,000 from $7,500—the extra money was to be used to erect a building at the airport.

"The extra money had to be used to pay off bank loans rather than be used for construction because we couldn't get that $24,692," Dengler said.

Await Good Weather

John Grady, secretary of the Coolbaugh Township supervisors, said that since the county aid application has been approved by the previous board of commissioners, the supervisors are now waiting for good weather to let the contract to Shiffer.

"After the contract is let and the road built," he said, "a township engineer will approve the completed work, will notify the state, the state will tell the county commissioners that it is all right to release money from the liquid fuel tax account. The commissioners will then reimburse the township."

The airport authority will then get its $24,692.32.

Picketing To Continue At Hospital

EAST STROUDSBURG — Picketing will continue at the construction site of the General Hospital of Monroe County, Earl Hilliard, business agent of Local 52, Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union of America, said last night.

Tuesday morning 12 marchers carrying signs saying, "I am a Monroe County resident bricklayer. Why can't I get a job?" Several marchers were on the scene yesterday and pickets will continue to be seen, according to Hillard.

The dispute started on Feb. 6 when three local bricklayers walked off the job in protest of C. B. Haney, brick contractor on the job, refused to hire two local men at a time four workers were to be added to the force.

Hilliard said, "the protest is not a legal matter, but one of a private citizen looking for work."

Yetter Asks Study To Ease Aged Taxes

STROUDSBURG -- State Rep. Van D. Yetter Jr. of Marshalls Creek introduced a resolution in the General Assembly Tuesday calling for a detailed study of the "problems of taxation confronting our senior citizens."

The measure was a joint resolution sponsored by Democrat Yetter, Russell Eshback, Pike County Republican and John Bonner, Carbon County Democrat.

It asks the Joint State Government Commission to study the feasibility of postponing the tax sales of homes owned and occupied by persons who are 65 years or older and who do not have an income of more than $2,500.

The resolution would apply to real estate that has a valuation of less than $10,000.

Yetter pointed out many bills of this type have been introduced in the legislature in the past "but none have come out of committee because there is a question of their constitutionally."

Therefore, the resolution proposes a study of the entire area of taxation in question, by the joint commission and that the commission report its findings to the 1965 session of the General Assembly along with its recommendations.

The resolution will go to the house rules committee then the joint commission's executive committee where it will be decided if the proposal warrants study.

Yetter introduced a bill of this type late in the 1963 session of the General Assembly and the measure was never reported out of committee.

He said he tried to re-introduce the bill at the special session called by Gov. Scranton this year but the house refused to consider the bill because it did not qualify as an appropriation or tax measure. Special sessions are restricted to these items.

Yetter claims state or local governments will not be jeopardizing any tax money with his bill. "When an estate is settled and the property is sold the taxes would be taken out," he said.

Delbert said a debate club may organize in East Stroudsburg High School.

Scranton Aide Lauds S-burg School System

STROUDSBURG — William Johnson, Stroudsburg Negro who is assistant secretary to Governor William Scranton, told the Kiwanis Club yesterday that he admired the school system and "the atmosphere of brotherly love" in Stroudsburg.

He said he once opposed formation of a Stroudsburg chapter of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, but now supports the idea completely after seeing the difficulties caused in other Pennsylvania cities, like Folcroft, where racial disturbances occurred because of a lack of planning by white and Negro leaders.

A Stroudsburg chapter of the NAACP was formed last fall.

Johnson compared his and his daughter's experience in Stroudsburg schools with his daughter's experience in a Harrisburg school. "You may not realize that the education your children get in Stroudsburg is the best possible in my experience," Johnson said.

Sees Industrial Boom

Explaining his support for the Stroudsburg NAACP, Johnson said that Stroudsburg and Monroe County will be in the center of an industrial boom area and will have to cope with an influx of new population in the future and with possible racial problems.

For this reason, Johnson said, it is important for Negro and white community leaders to start working together now to solve common problems.

He said the Negro's biggest problem in the Stroudsburg area now is housing and asked what each citizen is doing to help relocate Negro families from the East Stroudsburg urban renewal area.

Johnson spoke at the weekly Kiwanis meeting at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Judges Set For Eastburg Science Fair

EAST STROUDSBURG — Lewis R. Hastie, science fair chairman at East Stroudsburg High School, yesterday announced the names of the judges for the school's science fair. The event will be held in the high school cafeteria.

The judging will be done Thursday from 5 to 7 p.m., and the projects will be open to the public from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Thursday.

The divisions and judges are as follows:

Engineering, Electrical and Physics—Harold Croasdale and Franklin Tolman.

Animal Experiments — Harold Croasdale and Franklin Tolman.

Conservation and Landscaping—Dr. M. J. Leitner and William Eden.

Models — Dr. Mary Hunsicker and Kenneth Lee.

Plant and Animal Collections —Dr. Thomas Grainger, Gerald Robinson and John Doebling.

Human Biology — Dr. L. W. Hunsicker and Dr. Joseph DeMeio.

Dissections — Dr. Meyer Halperin and Thomas Knepp.

Plant Experiments, Environment and Tropisms—Dr. M. J. Leitner and William Eden.

Plant Experiments, Chemicals, Auxins and Fertilizers — Dr. Meyer Halperin and Thomas Knepp.

Plant Experiments, Light, Sound and Radiation — Frank Buser and Justin Feltham.

Junior High School Projects —Harold Croasdale and Franklin Tolman.

Hastie said there are 189 projects entered in the fair and that competition this year is very keen. He urges all visitors to use the entrance on the gymnasium side of the building which leads into the school cafeteria.

Fire School At Blue Ridge

SAYLORSBURG — Willard Shoemaker, chief of Blue Ridge Hook and Ladder Fire Co., yesterday said a 15-week fire school is being held every Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the firehall at Saylorsburg.

Instructor for the school is Clarence Strunk, a retired fire chief from East Stroudsburg.

Subjects included in the course are ventilation, organization, fire fighting techniques, fire fighting tools, appliances, ropes, salvage, forest fires, and rescue work.

Rotary Governor In Stroudsburg

STROUDSBURG — The Rotary Club of Stroudsburg is observing the 59th anniversary of the national organization's founding this week.

Edward Dieffenbach, governor of Rotary District 741, will speak at the club's meeting at noon today in the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Barrett Twp. Groups Lead Heart Drive

CANADENSIS — Barrett Township community churches and their women's auxiliaries headed by Mrs. Chester Seese, Canadensis, is leading all other teams in Heart Fund collections in this the final week of the February Heart Month drive, according to Dorothy Oliver, executive director of the Association.

To date approximately $400 has been collected in two and a half weeks by women of the McComas Chapel, Moravian Church, Mountainhome Methodist Church, Canadensis Methodist Church and St. Ann's Catholic Church.

The contributions from Skytop Lodge and Buck Hill Falls will be included in the final report.

Monroe County has not had a "Heart Sunday" collection this year, a practice in the past. Due to inclement weather at this time of year it was decided to continue throughout the entire month. The drive ends Saturday, Feb. 29.

Friends of the Heart Fund who were missed by neighborhood volunteer solicitors were asked to place contributions in an envelope and mail it to the new office of the Heart Association in the Jail House, Courthouse Square, Stroudsburg.

Five Day Weather Forecast

Five-day forecasts for Feb. 27 through March 2:

Western Pennsylvania—Temperatures will average four to eight degrees below normal. Cold Thursday and Friday, moderating Saturday and then turning colder again. Precipitation will average from two-tenths to four-tenths of an inch melted, occurring as light snow or snow flurries Friday through Sunday.

Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Southeastern New York—Temperatures are expected to average two to eight degrees below normal. Coldest at the beginning and end of the period with moderation in mid-period. Precipitation may total one-half inch melted with snow flurries in the mountains Thursday and Sunday and more general precipitation late Saturday.

Middle Atlantic States—Temperatures will average four or five degrees below normal. Colder Thursday, warmer Friday and Saturday and colder Sunday and Monday.

OVERTURNED — A gas trailer lies on its side near Stroudsburg to Wind Gap Highway on Rte. 115 ramp after flipping over Tuesday night. Workmen were forced to transfer gas from disabled vehicle to another tanker. Traffic was tied up for eight hours. (Staff Photo by MacLeod)

Scranton Steps Up UC Info Push

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Scranton Administration stepped up its campaign to combat what it calls misinformation about its unemployment compensation program.

The governor attacked the problem on two fronts, making public a letter to a Hazleton labor union official and issuing a statement on the impact of the program on garment workers.

"The facts are that garment workers who have, not through their own choice, limited their participation in the work force, are overwhelmingly benefited by our proposed changes," Scranton declared.

A special study by the Bureau of Employment Security showed that of 95,000 persons willing to work full time in the garment industry, only one per cent would be eliminated from unemployment compensation benefits, Scranton said.

Twenty per cent would be eligible for increased benefits, according to the study, while 74 per cent would have no change and 5 per cent would face a potential decrease in benefit weeks.

The letter was mailed Monday to John Wascavage, president of Local 1026, United Automobile Workers Union, which represents workers at Highway Trailer Industries, Inc., Hazleton.

Scranton said he wrote the letter in answer to an opposition advertisement which appeared in the Hazleton newspapers over Wascavage's name.

New Physical Education Phase

STROUDSBURG — Five "Physical Educators", gymnastic apparatus, for children in grades one through six have recently been installed in all Stroud Union elementary school gynasiums, according to George Metropoulos, supervisor of the elementary physical education department.

Students started using the equipment last week and will continue for eight weeks. The apparatus was designed to improve physical fitness, especially the upper part of the body, shoulder, arms and chest. Testing has indicated that these parts of the body in most cases were the most underdeveloped, reported Metropoulos.

Each machine has an estimated value of $250. The equipment was purchased for all schools except in Hamilton Elementary School where the PTA purchased one last year.

Each machine is two and one-half feet wide, eight feet long, and nine feet high. The collapsible machine, constructed of aluminum tubing, weighs 250 pounds, and folds into the gymnasium's wall protruding only eight inches.

Activities that can be performed on the physical educator include vertical ladder, horizontal ladder, climbing rope, climbing pole, still rings (flying rings), trapeze, and an adjustable chinning bar.

Metropoulos said at present students are using two activities on the apparatus, however, in a few weeks the students will develop into using four stations on the machine.

Student teachers assigned to the elementary schools from East Stroudsburg State College, and who are responsible for the physical education program in each school under Metropoulos are:

Jan Beliveau, of Morey; Richard Hanlon of Ramsey; John Piatak of Hamilton; Miss Katherine Butler of Arlington and Miss Barbara Ruane of Clearview.

Just Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

It all started around a bridge table with somebody admiring somebody's else's hand - knit sweater. Seems it had been inherited because it didn't have quite the neck or the bulky lines demanded by the teen-ager for whom it had been knit.

"Seems to me that when we were teen-agers, if somebody gave us a sweater, we wore it," a third commented. I'm sure we did, along with long underwear, high laced shoes to strengthen our ankles, and, in summer, dresses with matching bloomers.

Which doesn't mean that we always liked it. But there was something to be said for having no choice; at least you could blame your mother. Today's youngsters, not only permitted but sometimes forced to make choices, have only themselves to blame when their clothes come under the ridicule of their classmates. Which may explain why they conform so closely to whatever may be the accepted garb of the moment among their contemporaries.

And that turned the conversation to how many more decisions we all have to make than our parents and take lineoleum. Used to be that you picked from red, grey or tan and that was that. Now you not only have to choose color combinations ranging from turquoise with tan to coral with grey but also between a dozen different materials and grades.

Can you remember when kitchen pans came in either a mottled grey or white enamel, perlod? And bathtubs and sinks in white? And you had lace curtains or nothing? It certainly simplified the matter of furnishing a house, with the only decision you had to make being whether you could afford it.

There was a time you could decide between going to prayer meeting on Wednesday night or staying home; between playing the victrola or reading a book; between being friendly with the people within walking distance of your home or being lonely; between joining the family around the lamp on the dining room table or sitting in the dark.

Now, it's decisions, decisions, decisions. Most nights you must choose between three or more things that you could or should be doing; or if you stay home you have to decide which channel at what time.

You can join your friends in Florida for a long weekend or go visit the family in California for a few days. And unless you make a definite appointment with your family, the members of it may not see each other for days on ends, what with each one having self-contained homes in their own rooms and frozen dinners eliminating the need for a set dinner hours.

No wonder we need tranquilizers and psychiatrists. Life was much more simple when you only had one Sunday outfit of clothes and the only decision you had to fight for was whether you could wear it to school before you outgrew it.

How to Read At Home And Get Paid For It

By Roberta Fleming Roesch

"I love to read and seem to have a well-developed sense of what appeals to most people," writes a follower of this column, "so I'm wondering how to use this talent to find a job at home working as a reader for the movies or a publishing house.

"I know that such jobs exist," our reader goes on. "But I haven't the slighest idea of how to find the work.

"I hope that you can help me, though, since the work seems like a natural as I love to read so much."

Seems Natural

For many people who like to read, reading for pay seems natural!

But reading for pleasure and reading for pay are not identical twins. And the jobs aren't yours for the asking just because you like to read.

In the first place, jobs where you read at home are frankly hard to come by. In many cases, for example, they're plums that go to people who've already done manuscript reading at a desk in an office.

In other cases, they're handed out to people with contracts in publishing or theatrical fields, or with other experience behind them. And in every case the demand for jobs is greater than the supply.

How To Start

Consequently, the best way to get your start (if you don't have the above qualifications) is to apply for a job in the office of a publisher, magazine, play company, movie company or literary agent.

At first a willingness to work in the office is more apt to yield you a job than a pitch for outside work. And in some firms you'll be expected take on other chores, too, to intersperse with your reading.

To succeed at the reading, however, you'll need the following attributes.

First, you'll be expected to know how to get through a huge pile of manuscripts quickly by automatically weeding out scripts that don't fit your employer's needs.

Next, you'll have to be able to scan and skim a typewritten page and absorb the high spots on sight. Then, as you scan, you'll weed out more scripts to send back to their owners.

On the scripts that you retain to show to other readers, you'll have to make notations commenting on the script.

Essentially these comments will concern themselves with subject matter, length, general appeal, style of writing, timeliness and handling of plot or contents.

Public Dance, Card Party On Spring Agenda

Red Cross Doing Good Job In County But--

STROUDSBURG — The Red Cross is doing an effective job in Monroe County but can still further improve its services. This is the gist of a report submitted to a recent meeting of the local Red Cross chapter's board of directors.

The report stemmed from an analysis in depth of all the chapter' various services by a committee appointed by Celeste Rossi, Monroe County Red Cross chairman.

The committee of four, all directors of the local chapter, were Russell Harmon, chairman, and W. C. G. Peterson, James Gould and Raymond Roberts.

Using a format supplied by National Red Cross Headquarters, the committee asked itself pointed questions and came up with straight answers.

The committee had high praise for the chapter's blood program, home and volunteer services, but found that the organization could be better prepared for major disasters.

A more direct liasion between the chapter and Civil Defense was suggested, including a master plan to handle the "big emergencies."

Typical Questions-Answers

Some of the typical questions and answers were:

Is home service available 24 hours a day, including weekends and holidays?

This is so. There is an answering service on off hours.

Does the community know home service exists?

The committee feels it is fairly well known among other organizations but the average citizen knows little about it, so there is room for improvement. The new life in our publicity program will probably solve this problem.

Does the chapter have the volunteers to do its mandatory work?

We lack Home Service volunteers and Staff Aides. We particularly need volunteers who can type.

Does the chapter have the volunteers to do its other work?

We need to formulate some sort of plan to recruit volunteers to be active and to also serve as a reserve force. After being recruited they should receive information as to Red Cross program and policies.

Could Stand More Help

Is the chapter well supported?

Yes—but it can stand more.

Russell Harmon reported for the committee. It was followed by a lively discussion, in which most members took part.

Chapter Chairman Celeste Rossi thanked the committee and promised that its recommendations would be implemented at an early date.

Summer Resident Of Canadensis

VENICE, Fla. (AP)—Services were held Tuesday for John G. Loofbourrow, 61, a convivial, rotypoly onetime actor and longtime Manhattan newspaperman, who died at Venice Hospital Monday of cancer.

He was a former resident of Canadensis.

The body was cremated.

He was a victim of the same disease that two years ago claimed his wife, Louise Groody a top Broadway musical comedy star of the 1920's. Together they shared a host of friends.

Loofbourrow retired Feb. 1, 1963, from The Associated Press because of ill health. He had served four years as night city editor of the AP local desk, formerly the New York City News Association.

A native of Oberlin, Ohio, Loofbourrow grew up in London, Ohio. Stage struck at an early age, he wrote books and lyrics for student shows at Kenyon College in Gambier, Ohio.

In 1921, he came to New York and managed to obtain parts in a few none too successful Broadway shows.

Mrs. Hutton To Be Cited

VALLEY FORGE — A summer resident of Bartonsville, Mrs. Ann Hawkes Hutton, author - chairman of the Washington Crossing Park Commission will receive the General Washington Honor Medal from Freedom's Foundation.

The award, announced by the directors and officers of Freedom's Foundation at Valley Forge, was made by the distinguished National and School Award Jury for her play "The Decision", a drama with music, based on Washington's crossing of the Delaware.

The play was honored as "an outstanding accomplishment in helping to achieve a better understanding of the American Way of Life.

The play was staged at Cherry Lane Playhouse, East Stroudsburg RD, last summer.

Prospective Students Day

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Women's Day Student Association of East Stroudsburg State College will sponsor the annual Prospective Day Student Party on March 4 beginning at 1:30 p.m. in the Stroud Hall Day Room.

Senior girls from area high schools who are prospective day students this coming fall are invited to the party where they receive general information and answers to questions concerning day student facilities at East Stroudsburg State College.

Dr. LeRoy J. Koehler, the college president, and Miss Ruth Jones, the Dean of Women, will greet and welcome the prospective students.

During the dispensing of general information, Barbara Groner of Bangor will speak on the Secondary curriculum; Margaret Laubner of East Stroudsburg on the Elementary curriculum; Barbara Schaeffer of East Stroudsburg on the Health and Physical Education curriculum and Beth Dening of East Stroudsburg will talk on extra-curricular activities.

East Stroudsburg State College girls will also conduct the prospective day student girls on tours of the campus area and buildings.

Mildred Wheatly, assistant of women, is the faculty adviser to the Women's Day Student Organization.

To the average housewife, newspapers have one big advantage over the radio and television media — you can wrap the garbage in a newspaper.

Release Liston's Purse: 'Honest Injury'

CASSIUS CLAY, new heavyweight champion of the world, gets clean bill of health following Tuesday night's stunning 7th round TKO over Sonny Liston.

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The Miami Beach Boxing Commission announced Wednesday night that it is completely satisfied that heavyweight Sonny Liston suffered an "honest injury" in his losing title fight with Cassius Clay.

Commission Chairman Morris Klein said the promoters, William MacDonald and Chris Dundee, had been instructed to release Liston's purse. It was held up after the fight pending a report by medical examiners on the shoulder injury that caused Liston to surrender his title at the end of the sixth round.

"No Wrong-Doing"

"We are satisfied that there was no wrong-doing," Klein said, "and there is no further reason to hold up the purse."

He said the medical reports and X rays would be turned over Thursday to State Atty. Richard Gerstein, who wants a complete report on the medical examinations.

Gerstein said he had no complaints and no evidence that the Tuesday night fight was not completely regular, but said he just wanted to have the reports studied by official doctors to determine if there was any basis for action by his office.

The commission received a dozen telegrams from individuals around the nation Wednesday protesting the fight and and an event that "set boxing back 100 years."

Doctors Satisfied

Klein said the eight doctors who examined Liston were satisfied with his story that he threw a left hook in the first round, heard something snap, and then lost control of his arm.

Klein said the $2,500 fine slapped on Clay after his hysterical performance at the weigh-in still stands. Such fines are donated to the Welfare Fund of Miami Beach.

The bizarre ending of the fight still had tongues wagging after the doctors' report was made public.

Gerstein had asked the boxing commission for the records of the examination made in the wee small hours Wednesday morning at St. Francis' Hospital.

Dundee said he thought Liston may have gotten something on his gloves accidentally, adding that he did not think there had been any trickery.

The fight was a financial fiasco for promoter Bill MacDonald, the Miami sportsman who guaranteed a live gate of $625,000 and assumed promotional expenses that put his total liability at $800,000. A crowd of 8,279 paid only $402,000 to see the fight.

$400,000 Loser

MacDonald, who figures to lose about $400,000, said he wanted to continue as a promoter and had been assured by both sides that he would be the promoter of the rematch.

The closed-circuit television people, Theatre Network Television, Inc., said they had set a record of more than 560,000 paid and $3,320,000 in receipts. The old record was set for the first Liston-Floyd Patterson fight at Chicago, Sept. 25, 1962.

Preliminary estimates were that Liston would get over $1.3 million for the night's disappointing effort and Clay about $600,000.

Liston planned to return to his Denver home Thursday and in a few days would continue to Philadelphia for an examination by a specialist. Clay said he planned to remain in Miami for a week or so.

Liston, carrying his left arm in a sling and wearing dark glasses that hid a patch under his left eye, returned to Convention Hall for a news conference in which he blamed his defeat on the injury.

"Felt Something"

"I felt something when I missed a punch in the first round," said the 30-year-old ex-champ. "From the first round on I fought with one hand. When I threw my left the whole glove felt like it was full of water. When I raised my arm, it felt like I had lead in my glove."

Clay, unbeaten in 20 fights and champion of the world at the tender age of 22, shucked off his clown role and behaved like a true champion at an earlier news conference. The wild-eyed man who created a disturbance at the weigh-in was subdued. He spoke so quietly that it was difficult to hear him. No cane, no "I'm the king", no "rumble man, rumble."

"People underrated me," said the former Olympic champ who has become known as the Louisville Lip. "My mouth overshadowed my ability".

"Lot Of Hands"

"After the first round I know I had the title. I didn't know there was nothing wrong with his left hand. He was fighting back with it. In the fifth round when I couldn't see he followed me all around and threw a lot of hands."

When a newsman asked Clay if he wasn't in a subdued mood, the new champ replied, "I'm through talking. I'm going to be a nice clean gentleman."

At one stage of the mass interview Clay said he had even thought of retiring because "I really don't like to fight. I don't like to hit and hurt people.

"I'm young. Maybe I ought to retire like Rocky Marciano. Every time he gets introduced he gets a big cheer. I made history. Maybe it's a good time to quit."

"Magic Name"

Then, almost in the next breath, he said, 'My name is magic all over he world. There's never been a heavyweight in history that could dance like me. I'll fight two ranking heavyweights in the same night. Sure, I'll fight Liston again if he wants it. Let him rest up and get well. That is, if he wants a rematch."

Clay and his adviser, Bill Faversham of the group of 11 Louisville businessmen who direct his career, confirmed that the next defense would be promoted by Inter - Continental Sports of which Liston owns 47½ per cent.

Bob Nilon, an officer of Inter-Continental and brother of Jack Nilon, Liston's adviser, said his group had paid Clay $50,000 for the right to promote his next fight. He said the deal was made months ago and that Inter-Continental would name the date and site. The opponent would be someone mutually agreeable to both parties. Liston, as a 47½ per cent owner, would appear to be the logical contender.

Wants Rematch

Liston indicated strongly he would like a rematch although his personal physician, Dr. Robert Bennett of Detroit, said he would not be able to start training for at least two months.

Asked if he would quit if he didn't get the rematch, Liston said, "It's hard to say. I don't think I would. If Clay wants the rematch I'll take it. If not, I imagine I'll forget it."

Liston was not impressed by Clay as a fighter and said the new champion was not as good as Zora Folley and Eddie Machen, two contenders.

Surprisingly he added, "Clay didn't put up as good a fight as Patterson. Patterson came to win or lose. He didn't come to run and hide like he stole something."

"Scared As A Thief"

Did Liston think Clay was scared?

"Scared as a thief," he replied.

Liston, of course, knocked out Patterson twice, each time in the first round.

"I made a mistake in the first round," said Liston. "I threw too many wild punches. I shouldn't have went out there and thrown everything in the first round. I was after a knockout from the first bell."

Liston said he wanted to continue but was overruled by his trainer, Willie Reddish, and Nilon.

"I wanted to come out anyway," Liston said. "Losing the title to me was like the day the President got shot. Willie told me to double up on my jab. I told him I couldn't use the hand. He said he was going to stop it but I said 'no.' From the first round on it pained me everytime I lifted my left arm. I was missing because I didn't have a left hand."

Issue Statement

The eight doctors who examined Liston for 3½ hours after the fight, at St. Francis' Hospital, issued the following statement:

"Sonny Liston received an injury to the long head of the biceps tendon of his left shoulder with the result that there is a separation and tear of the muscle fibers with some hemorrhage into the inside belly of the biceps. This condition could be sufficient to incapacitate him and prevent him from defending himself."

Six stitches were taken in a wide, deep cut under Liston's left eye. He wore a patch over that Wednesday.

Clay was unmarked, just like a man who "floats like a butterfly and stings like a bee." He could have been riding in his convertible and listening to jive on his tape recorder Tuesday night for all you could see.

The new champion was bitter about one thing — the foreign substance that got into his eyes before the fifth round and blinded him.

"Couldn't See"

"You can't tell me they didn't try something. It burned my eyes and I couldn't see. I told Angie (trainer Angelo Dundee) to cut off my gloves. I didn't want to go out there just to get knocked out. I'd rather quit at the end of the fourth than have them say I made some excuse when I lost. I think he had some liniment or grease on his gloves."

Cassius Nearly Lost!

By MILTON RICHMAN

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Precocious Cassius Clay, the new heavyweight king, came within a split second of being declared the loser on a technical knockout, referee Barney Felix disclosed Wednesdey.

Mincing no words, Felix, a veteran of 30 years in the ring, said Clay "will never know how close he came to losing that fight Tuesday night."

Felix insisted Clay looked as if he did not wish to continue when the bell sounded to start the fifth round, and had he remained seated on his stool "for one more split second, I would have stopped the bout and awarded it to Sonny Liston on a TKO."

Felix, senior referee in New York State, made it plain he wasn't fooling.

"When the bell rang for the fifth, Clay didn't budge," he recalled. "He just sat there. He wouldn't come out.

"'Dammit, Clay, get out here!' I hollered at him. If he hadn't moved in a split second —and I mean one second — he was all finished."

Clay's handlers had to push him bodily off the stool.

"Good thing they did, or Liston still would be world champion today," said the stocky, 48-year - old referee. "They all know my reputation. I won't take any nonsense."

Clay himself admitted that he almost did not get off the stool. He insisted he could not see and the only reason he finally did resume fighting was because his trainer, Angelo Dundee, pushed him off the stool and said, "This is a big one, buddy, and we aren't going to quit now."

Clay's corner lodged heated protests after the fourth round that Liston's gloves had liniment on them and that Cassius was unable to see.

"I'm positive there was no liniment on Liston's gloves," insisted Felix, who has refereed 15 championship bouts and serves as a director and supervisor of the Doral Beach Hotel athletic program when he isn't working in the ring.

Warrior Quintet Smashes Wilkes

WILKES-BARRE— With four players hitting in double figures, East Stroudsburg State College's basketball Warriors last night subdued host Wilkes College, 87-67.

Dennis Marchalonis set the scoring pace for the winners with 20 points, followed by Harvey Branyan (19), Dick Koch (17) and Warren Landis (12).

The victory was the fourth for the Warriors who enjoyed their best shooting percentage from the field with a nifty 42.8. Wilkes hit for 37.2 per cent.

In addition, ESSC swished in a fabulous 21 of 23 foul attempts, taking a huge advantage of the 16 fouls committed by the losers.

The key to the game lay in the fine rebounding of the Warriors who grabbed a total of 61 to a scant 28 for Wilkes. Branyan was the top rebounder in the game with 22.

Leading by 41-33 at the half, the Warriors pulled away in rapid fashion during the last 10 minutes of the contest with Marchalonis and Guy Stewart pumping in the points.

Dale Nicholson topped Wilkes with 17 points in the scoring department with Dick Morgan netting 15 and Joe Chanecka tallying 13.

Wilkes won the JV game, 79-70.

Villanova Wins 20th

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Eighty-ranked Villanova racked up its 20th basketball victory Wednesday night, walloping Marquette 87-64.

NCAA - bound Villanova has lost only three this season. Marquette is now 4-19 and Wednesday night's loss was the 13th straight.

The Wildcats, ahead 36-30 at halftime, collected 13 consecutive points and built up a 22-point lead early in the second half. From there on the teams traded field goals with Villanova using their second string for the last five minutes.

Wally Jones was high scorer for Villanova with 23. Joe Mimlitz led the Warriors with 21.

237 Exhibition Games Slated

CINCINNATI (AP) — National League baseball teams plan to warm up with 237 exhibition games this spring before starting regular season competition.

Of these games, 166 will be against American League teams. The exhibition schedule also includes nine games with minor league teams and one with a college team, according to the league's announcement Wednesday.

The exhibition season gets under way March 7 in Arizona.

Giants Sign Up Juan Marichal

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI) — Juan Marichal, who won more games—25—than any other right hand pitcher in the major leagues in 1963, came to terms Wednesday with the San Francisco Giants for a reputed $40,000.

The club made the announcement at the spring training headquarters here, but neither Marichal nor Chub Feeney, the San Francisco general manager, was present. Feeney was in San Francisco and Marichal in the Dominican Republic where he resides off season.

Marichal, a control pitcher with an excellent curve, held out for 22 days last season when he finally signed for $24,000. This year, he sought about $45,000, and was understood to have settled for about $40,000—although no official figure was mentioned.

Marichal, 26, had a 25-9 won-lost record last year, when he engaged in some of the season's most publicized duels with the Los Angeles' Dodgers' Sandy Koufax. He had an earned run average of 2.41.

Marichal pitched a no-hitter on June 15 against Houston, and had five shutouts to his credit.

K. C. Lease Remains Unsigned

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Mayor Ilus W. Davis came out of a meeting with lawyers for Athletics owner Charles O. Finley Wednesday and said, "We're not going to have a signed lease tonight."

Davis and the City Council's baseball committee had been closeted with three Finley lawyers for more than an hour discussing the Athletics' proposed lease for Municipal Stadium.

Davis went back to the meeting after talking briefly with newsmen.

The talks apparently were snagged on a section of the contract that would commit Finley to keeping the A's in Kansas City for four years, come what may. There was no comment on this from either side.

Finley had agreed to a four-year lease last Sunday after holding out for a two-year contract. He sought to move the club to Louisville and Oakland, Calif. American League club owners rejected his proposals and voted 9-1 to meet and decide whether Finley should be ousted from the loop.

Princess Arle Stakes Winner

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Princess Arle, perfectly ridden by John Rotz, scored a one-length victory in the $60,700 Black Helen Handicap at Hialeah Park Wednesday to give Calumet Farms its first stakes win since mid-1962.

Patrol woman was second, one length behind the winner. Tona was third. Smart Deb, the 8-5 favorite with the crowd of 29,979, finished fourth in the field of nine fillies and mares.

After the first four came My Portrait, Yes Please, Abby's Crown, High Fiz and Alecee.

Princess Arle carried only 112 pounds and was scoring her fourth straight triumph, including three at Hialeah. The chestnut daughter of Prince Equillo out of Miss Arlette by Bull Lea ran the 1⅛-mile in 1:50 3-5 on a fast track.

German Skaters Reverse Russians

DORTMUND, Germany (UPI) —Germany's Marika Kilius and and Hans - Juergen Baumler turned the tables on their Soviet Olympic conquerors Wednesday to win the pairs title at the world figure skating championships for the second straight year.

In the Olympics, the German stars were upset by the Russian pair of Ludmilla Belousova and Oleg Protopopov.

But Wednesday night the attractive Miss Kilius and her partner came through with a victory by a narrow margin after a very fast and breathtaking routine. They had 13 ordinals and 314.5 points to 14 ordinals and 313.7 points in the unofficial table.

Germany also retained the lead in the men's singles event at the conclusion of the compulsory figures as Manfred Schnelldorfer, the Olympic champion, retained first place in Wednesday's sixth figure.

Czech Second

Karol Divin of Czechoslovakia was second, Alain Calmat of France third, and 15-year - old Scott Ethan Allen of Smoke Rise, N.J., fourth.

This exactly duplicated the standing of the same four skaters at the same point in the Olympics. In subsequent free skating, Calmat moved up to second and Allen to third as Divin dropped to fourth. Experts anticipate that the same thing is likely to happen here Thursday when free skating concludes the event.

Tommy Litz, 19, of Hershey, Pa., was eighth at the end of the school figures but, as one of the best free skaters in the world (his Olympic score in free skating was the second highest in the competition), is expected to move up Thursday.

MVP Howard Signs For $6,000 Hike

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) —Elston Howard, the American League's "Most Valuable Player" in 1963, Wednesday signed his 1964 contract with the New York Yankees for a $6,000 pay boost that lifted his salary to approximately $55,000.

Two other players, catcher-outfielder John Blanchard and pitcher Steve Hamilton, also signed up Wednesday.

Still unsigned are Mickey Mantle, whose agreement to another $100,000 contract is expected shortly, infielder Phil Linz, outfielder Tom Tresh, and pitchers Jim Bouton and Hal Reniff. Bouton, a 21-game winner, and Reniff, ace of the bullpen, will be classed as holdouts if they don't sign by 10:30 a.m. Thursday when Yankee pitchers must report to camp.

Howard, 34, earned the "Most Valuable Player" award last year for a steady performance that helped the Yankees to the American League pennant while Mantle, Roger Maris, and other reliables lost time through injuries. The right-handed batting catcher had a .287 batting average with 28 homers and 85 runs-batted-in, plus his fine defensive work.

PM Girl Cagers Win Final Game

SWIFTWATER — Gail Cramer tallied 18 points to lead Pocono Mountain's girls basketball team to a 33-25 win over visiting Washington, N.J., to close the season. The win was the fifth against four setbacks.

Miss Cramer completed the campaign with a total of 111 points.

Pocono Mountain led at the half, 18-10.

Kuharich To Coach Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Owner Jerry Wolman will hand the job of coaching the Philadelphia Eagles back to National Football League respectability to veteran pro Joe Kuharich, The Associated Press learned Wednesday.

Wolman, who fired head coach Nick Skorich Jan. 21, the day his $5.5-million purchase of the Eagles was approved by the league and the other club owners, is expected to announce appointment of the 46-year-old Kuharich at a news conference Thursday night.

Contacted at his office in Silver Spring, Md., the millionaire building contractor neither would confirm nor deny the Kuharich report.

Kuharich, former Washington Redskins and Notre Dame coach now an assistant to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, was reported out of his New York office undergoing dental work. He is supervisor of officials.

Dave Pierson Selected Area 'Brite Star' Athlete

STROUDSBURG —Dave Pierson, who says his only hobby is sports, has been named "Brite Star" of the week in The Daily Record coverage area for his scoring exploits of the last four Stroud Union basketball games.

The 17-year-old senior, who was awarded the honor actually on his performances of last week (30 points against Lehighton, and 20 against Catasauqua) led the Mountaineers in scoring in the final four games of the season. The other two were 24 against East Stroudsburg Feb. 15 and 20 against Whitehall Tuesday night.

Dave finished the season with 365 points overall and 255 in Lehigh Valley League competition — both tops for the team.

The carrot-topped six-footer has been playing varsity basketball since he was a freshman, thus earning his fourth letter this year. He also will earn a third letter this year in baseball where he pitches (he's a southpaw) and also plays left field.

Biggest Thrill

His biggest thrill of the basketball season? "I guess it was against East Stroudsburg in the second game."

Against the inter-borough rival Dave swished in 24 points to pace the Mounties to a 57-53 win over the Cavaliers.

He plans to enter a prep school next term before going to college. He professes not to know what major field of study he will undertake although he admits a leaning toward history as his favorite subject.

Born in Bryn Mawr, he came to Stroudsburg seven years ago. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Pierson of 907 W. Main St.

Belinsky Loses Weight In Vegas

By CHARLES MAHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) —Listening to entertainer Bo Belinsky talk about his recent engagement at a Las Vegas casino, you get the idea he would just as soon have spent the winter camping out at Valley Forge.

Belinsky, up every day at the crack of dusk during his punishing five-week stand in that hotbed of culture, left Las Vegas about $5,000 richer but a dozen pounds lighter.

Belinsky, a baseball pitcher as well as a stage personality, reported to the spring training base of the Los Angeles Angels looking like young John Carradine.

If he lost another five pounds, Bo could wear his wrist watch around his waist and use cigar bands for garters.

Wierd Hours

"I didn't enjoy that Vegas scene," he said. "We did three shows a night Monday through Friday and four a night Saturday and Sunday. It would be three in the morning by the time we got out, then I'd have to have dinner, and maybe shoot a little pool. It might be eight or nine in the morning when I finally got to sleep."

Belinsky appeared with comic Hank Henry. Bo wore his baseball uniform on stage.

"I'd sing a little, do a little soft shoe and twist," he said. "The money was nice. I pulled in a thousand a week. I rolled up a pile of bills when the Angels put me on the disqualified list last year for not reporting to Hawaii right away. I've paid off a lot of them."

Belinsky, who became enamored of Miss Mamie Van Doren of the movies about this time a year ago, was asked whether he had made any new romantic connections.

No Tie-Downs

"Man, I just don't want any tie-downs this year," he said. "So many people want to see me do good, I've got to try to make it.

"I wish I could win 30 games this year. I remember I said 15 and possibly 20 last year, and what happened? Three would have looked good. But I'm not going to get gun shy, I'm still going for 15.

"I've made up this proverb: 'If you ever need a helping hand, look on the end of your own arm.' "

Warrior JV's Win Mat Meet

EAST STROUDSBURG — The junior varsity wrestling team of East Stroudsburg State College yesterday blanked Keystone Junior College, 36-0.

Scoring falls for the winners were Bob Peters, Ray Fusco, Howard Dimpter and Brian Hughes. Dwight Bomberger and Bruce Raines each won by decision. Bomberger scored an overwhelming 28-1 decision over his opponent.

Fight Draws Paper Blank

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—The Arizona Journal, Phoenix morning daily newspaper, left nearly a half-page of its sports section blank Wednesday in protest of the Liston-Clay fight.

In a note within the white space, sports editor Larry Jones said the space had been reserved for coverage of the fight, but he added the fight "was a blight on the moral fiber of America." He said the sports department would not "be a part of publicizing such a rotten exhibition of boxing."

Jones said the sports page would not give coverage to the fight because he did not wish to "promote a second Liston-Clay fight, which some could believe was planned before Tuesday night's fight was ever fought. . ."

The fight story was carried in front page news columns, however.

PM Riflemen Shoot Down Stroud Union

SWIFTWATER — Pocono Mountain's rifle team opened its season yesterday in a display of sharp shooting which drubbed visiting Stroud Union, 492-482.

Robert Carey and Mike Campbell each shot 99s for the winners. They were followed by Alex Whitlow, Brian Yarborough and Tom Meiring who all shot 98s.

Top man for the Mountaineers was Jere Dunkelberger's 98. Jim Spencer shot a 97, Bill Heitler and Alfred Onken 96 and Mark Yinger 95.

'I Can Do It'

Pennel Thinks, Talks Positive

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — "I can do it . . . I'm gonna do it . . . I know I'm gonna do it . . ."

And the first thing anyone knew John Pennel was sending his 168-pound body hurtling over the magical 17-foot pole vault bar. That's how it was when the 20-year-old Coral Gables, Fla., athlete valuted 17 feet ¾ inch in his home town last August.

"You gotta talk yourself over," says Pennel. "You must think positive.'"

Pennel admits fiberglass is the material which enabled him to set the world record.

"Fell Flat"

"I remember real well the first time I used a fiberglass pole," says Pennel. "I went up four feet, and fell flat on my face. The thing scared me. I had been doing 15 feet with an aluminum pole.

"It took me almost two years to really get the hand of fiberglass, and I wouldn't say I've completely mastered it.

"Somewhere I had seen pole vaulting in a newsreel. Then my dad changed aluminum TV antennas on the house. The old one was about 10 feet long and an inch in diameter. I took some garbage cans, some chairs and put a stick across them at about six feet. Using the antenna for a pole I said to myself 'this feels natural'—and I cleared the six feet. I was about 12 or 13 then.

Offers Suggestion

"A couple of years later as a sophomore at Coral Gables High my older brother Bill was fooling around with Henry Wadsworth (who also reached 15-feet plus) at the high jumping pit. My brother, wanting to get rid of me, said 'why don't you go over and do some pole vaulting.'

brother, wanting to get rid of me, said 'why don't you go over and do some pole vaulting.'

"I was in school clothes, but I took off my shoes and socks and they let me try it at 8-6. I'd never seen a pole vaulting box before and the first time I tried to put the pole in it I missed the box entirely. I was embarrassed, but I got over the next time.

"The coach loaned me a pole for the summer and I dug a hole for a box in the yard, rigged up a cross bar between a tree and a clothesline pole and fixed up a 30-foot runway.

Falls On Back

"I got up to 11-6 but all Summer I was falling on my back, right on hard ground. I don't think my sacroiliac will ever be right."

A 5-foot-10 senior at Northeastern Louisiana State College, Pennel is glad his family moved from Whitehaven, Tenn., when he was 10. He is also thankful he taught himself to turn over the bar by kicking his right leg across it.

"That saved my back," says the personable Pennel.

"Somebody will do 18 feet before too long. I can do it—at least that's what I keep telling myself."

This was in Boston as he began a strenuous indoor pole vaulting campaign. No doubt he will be glad to get outdoors. He scaled only 15 feet indoors as the Massachusetts Knights of Columbus Games opened the Eastern indoor campaign.

Sports World Reacts To Clay's Victory

By United Press International

The world of sports, emerging from its surprise at Cassius Clay's heavyweight championship triumph over heavily - favored Sonny Liston, came up with these reactions Wednesday:

. . .European heavyweight champion Henry Cooper of Britain, who like Liston lost to Clay on a technical knockout, said he's ready to meet the Louisville Lip again "any time he likes."

. . .Swedish boxing fans started to speculate about a possible summer title fight between Clay and former champion Floyd Patterson, a huge favorite in Sweden.

. . .The Moscow newspaper Izvestia told the Soviet people there are rumors the Clay-Liston fight was "a trick."

. . .And various former heavyweight champions such as James J. Braddock, Jack Sharkey, and Max Schmeling paid tribute to the new champion's ability.

Ready To Challenge

Cooper, who added the European heavyweight crown to his British and Empire titles by beating fellow Briton Brian London in London on Monday night, said he's ready to "Challenge Clay direct, any time I can get near enough to talk to him; if we can't phone him, a cable will do."

British promoter Jack Solomons said he will bid for a Clay - Cooper fight in London this summer.

In Stockholm, however, Swedish fans started talking about Patterson, who has been popular there since his two fights with Ingemar Johansson and began his comeback there last month with a victory over Sante Amonti of Italy. Swedish matchmaker Edwin Ahlqvist, who has been in charge of Patterson's fights in Europe, has been planning for a summer fight between Floyd and Eddie Machen of the United States, but now there is talk of a Patterson-Clay match.

Soviets Claim Trick

In Moscow, Izvestia reported that "rumors are already spreading that the business of (Sonny Liston's) injured shoulder was a trick of the sporting syndicate reigning in American professional boxing."

In Ottawa, Ont., Braddock, who himself was a 10-1 underdog when won the heavyweight title from Max Baer, forecast a couple of hours before the fight that Clay could win "if he can last more than five rounds." After Cassius' seven-round TKO triumph, Braddock said, "He can really fight."

At Epping, N.H., ex - champ Sharkey said he had predicted Clay's victory because "he's young and cocky and can fight a lot better than anyone gave him credit for."

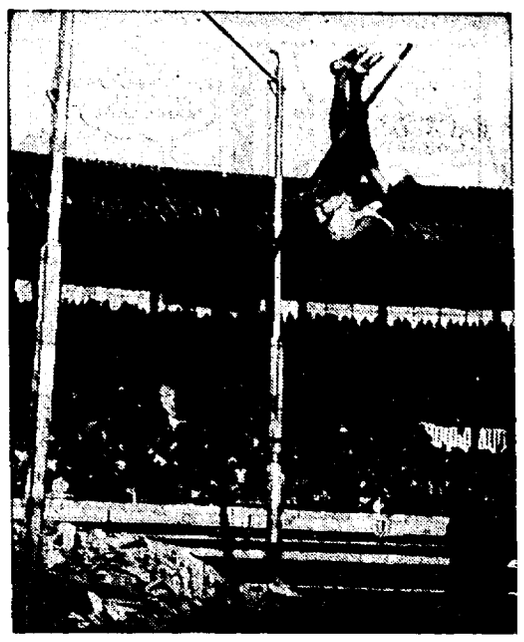
O'Hara Aims For Three Track Marks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tom O'Hara, making his first start since setting a world indoor mile record of 3:56.6, takes dead aim on a total of three records Thursday night in the Columbian mile at the New York K. of C. track meet.

The reddish-haired Loyola of Chicago senior, suddenly one of America's brightest hopes for Olympic laurels in October, will be trying to break his mile record of 3:56.6 set exactly two weeks ago on the same Madison Square Garden track; the three-quarter mile record of 3:01.2; and the 1,500 meter record of 3:46.6.

There are several other record possibilities of the K. of C. program, including a Ron Clarke-Bruce Kidd duel in the two-mile, a Gary Gubner-Parry O'Brien duel in the shot put, and Bill Crothers' switch to the 600-yard run.

But the spotlight is shining squarely on the 21-year-old O'Hara, who has an indoor streak of eight victories.



THIS LOOKS IMPOSSIBLE but John Pennel cleared the bar at 16-feet-10-inches in this pole vault at White City Stadium in London last August. A few days later, Pennel scaled a world record 17 feet ¾ inches in his home town, Coral Gables, Fla.

Cy Barrett Says

Scientific Reservoir

DEAR CY:

Alfred, my wife's noisy brother, says he got a profitable new product lead through your column. You told how small businessmen could get scientific information for new products through the U.S. department of commerce's office of technical services. What about this? Alfred brags so much I hate to ask him more. If our company could discover some new products to produce, our entire community could benefit.

LEM

DEAR LEM:

Here's a scoop on Al and the dope you desire. Until recently, the office of technical services was the spot in federal bureaucracy where an individual or company could obtain government financed research and development information. For $15 a year, 101 copies of the U.S. Government Research report can be had. Elaborate reports on listings are obtainable for 50 cents to $30. Example: Recent disclosure of a new heavy duty detergent for cleaning metal surfaces ("Medium Alkalinity Cleaners of Superior Detergency" - 50 cents-AD 404573).

Now the Small Business administration is pushing research and development information produced under the auspices of the National Aeronautics and Space administration. A number of top flight industrial research organizations work with it in evaluating space age discoveries which could be utilized by industry. Included are such Luminaries as Arthur D. Little, Inc.; Batelle Memorial Institute; Illinois Institute of Technology; Stanfore Research Institute.

Write the Office of Technical Utilization (Code AFT Re:MA), National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Washington, D.C., and get on their mailing list. Also ask a U.S. department of commerce field office for a free copy of Uncle Sam's Research Report. Through this jungle of technical jargon, guys like you and Al can profit from our match race with Russia to the moon.

CY

DEAR CY:

I am starting a new part-time business and need your help. My business will be located in my garage and I will sand-blast furniture, toys, bicycles and any metal needing a paint job. The equipment is being shipped to me and all I need is to know where to find customers. Would want ads reach the cream of the crop?

MR. BLAST

DEAR MR. BLAST:

Classified ads can blast money out of the public silver mine for you. Through advertising on the want ad pages under such headings as "Personals" or "Business Personals" or "Business Services," you'll find yourself shoulder to shoulder with such sundry profit - makers as tax services, haulers and movers, dance schools, secretarial services, private eyes, and take - up services. Run those ads! Even a cow doesn't give cream. You have to take it from her.

CY

DEAR CY:

Throw an orchid to the retailer who asked you how to advertise better in the face of "national chain store competition." Unlike so many of his fellow small businessmen, he didn't talk free enterprise out of one side of his mouth and restraint of his competitors out of the other.

He didn't go whimpering to the government, asking that laws be enacted to further his interests. He didn't ask local advertising media to refuse his competitor's advertising, for one cause or another. Maybe the man knew restraint of trade has its penalties, but I think he was enterprising.

BORCHARD

DEAR BORCHARD:

Those trying to rewrite the Golden Rule are in numerous strata of business society. Often, their battle cry is: "In the Consumer Interest." The consumer is ducking enough live bullets, without being held up and used as a shield in someone else's struggle for personal gain.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Thursday, February 27, 1964

March 21 to April 21 (Aries) — Quite unexpectedly, you may be afforded the chance to do something big, attain a new foothold. But if you are behind in your affairs, or have been dallying, you will lose time and the better offerings.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Consider if tactics could be improved, even if you ARE doing well. Then you will have extra credits ready for more trying hours. Personal affairs may advance slowly.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Put revived eagerness into efforts now. Success can come through your alliances. The "different", if appropriate, could spark day's drive.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — There's more to this day than may meet the casual eye. Note where you can tighten up loose ends, eliminate useless movement, wordiness.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — You will be over - crowded tomorrow if you neglect "small" items now; may spoil an otherwise good week - end if you follow inadequate methods. Double-check!

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Take all in proper order, yet realize that others may be underpar as you are at times. All dash and no let - up is not wise.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Heed Virgo; also, be careful that originality does not get out of control, and do not overplay your hand through enthusiasm. Direction, outlook vital.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — First get TODAY'S matters under day in an orderly fashion, then later ones will fall in line. Try to cover too much territory and you won't succeed.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Planetary aspects call for a quick review of what you plan for this day. Then, if all is still okay, proceed happily, without misgivings. Some out - of-the-ordinary matter can be initiated.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Give play to your capacity for accomplishing without seeming effort. There's opportunity now for greatly increased qualification, substantial gains. Relinquish outmoded methods, avoid pessimism.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — The impact of strengthened efforts can help to solidify gains. Skilled action should bring progress in keeping with high hopes. A good day.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — A slow start indicated, with increasing momentum as the day progresses, so don't let down in effort. Establish firm footing; gains can be increased.

YOU BORN TODAY are at home in neat, artistic surroundings; are ill at ease, unhappy with disorder. Once in your groove with predetermined goals, you strive consistently, not bothering with outside influences; reach attainment unusually swiftly and well. The well devel-ped of this date are clever, can handle large - scale jobs, enjoy scholarly undertakings. Birthdate of: Henry W. Longfellow, American poet; Elizabeth Taylor, film actress.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

THIS is a Daily Record want ad. It's one of the oldest forms of advertising still in use today.

The BIG Buy!

This is a three-line classified ad.

It costs Daily Record advertisers $3.36 for this ad on the weekly, 7-time rate. That figures out to only 48c per day!

It's not very big in size. It's not very imposing. And it doesn't cost very much as you can see. In fact, it looks pretty lonesome up there all by itself. But look at it this way.

What you get when you buy a three-line ad in The Daily Record is not just a single ad on one of the want ad pages. You've actually bought 10,150 copies of your three-line ad. And the price includes personal delivery of each copy to the reader's doorstep.

Just imagine the cost of reaching all those Daily Record families by post card. Why the postage alone would be $406.00! But The Daily Record does it all for you for a measly 48c per day. (For only $3.36 we'll do it seven times straight!)

So you can see this little want ad is really a pretty BIG buy!

LOOK FOR THE EXTRA CASH

"STORED" AROUND YOUR HOME!

First, look around the basement, attic, garage, store room and make a list of every worthwhile thing you find that isn't being used or enjoyed anymore. Things like appliances, dishes, sports equipment of all kinds, TV, radios, stereo, power tools, power mower, yard and porch furniture, typewriters, musical instruments, rugs, drapes, good outgrown toys and clothing. All of these things and the others you find are worth good hard cash to some other family - - - - - - but really, worth nothing to you if you no longer use or enjoy them.

Now, when you've finished your list, all that's left is to go to your phone and dial 421-7349 for a friendly Ad-Writer. She's waiting to help you word your ad to bring cash buyers right to your door in a hurry. Isn't it time you got out your own search warrant for the extra cash that's "stored" around your home!

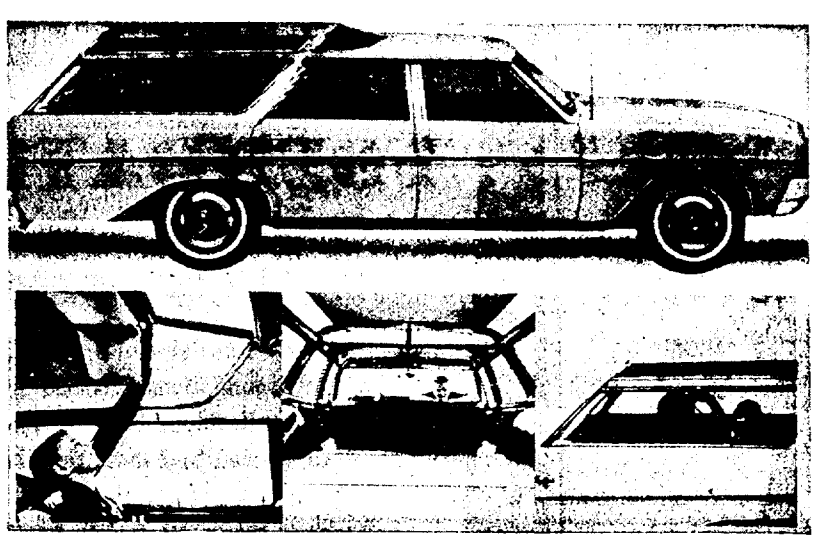
Weichel Buick has the new Skylark Sports Wagon.
(Wouldn't you be happier if you had it?)



How's this for a switch? People actually ride better than cargo in our sleek new Buick Skylark Sports Wagon. See that sporty raised roof? It lets second- and third-seat passengers sit up tall (yes, we've got two- and three-seat models). See the glass in the roof? It's a special kind—absorbs heat and glare, lets everyone look up and out so they never feel "hemmed in." But this new kind of wagon has big cargo space as well as big people space (97.9 cubic feet, in fact!) which is just one more reason it makes whatever you're now driving pretty old hat. So come in for some happy trade talk on our new Skylark Sports Wagon. We can arrange terms to suit you just fine.

The Green Thumb

Shamrock Common White Clover

By George Abraham

SHAMROCK: Is there such a plant as shamrock? I'm often asked this. Most people would be surprised to find that one of the plants which passes as shamrock is the common white clover (Trifolium repens).

This is usually the one florists start from seed and sell for St. Patrick's day. Another plant sold for shamrock is the hop-clover (Medicago lupulina) found in many lawns. And still another is the wood sorrel (Oxalis acetosella). Even the Irish do not agree which one of these is a "true" shamrock.

In America, the shamrock sold on streets and in florists shops are seedling plants of the white clover, seed of which can be found in any garden or farm store. Don't look for shamrock seed in the catalog, because it won't be listed. Look for white clover and you'll find it.

Seed can be sown in a sand-peat mixture and covered lightly with some peat or vermiculite or perlite. Grow in the brightest window possible. Keep watered and when seedlings are 1½ inch high they can be potted in small clay pots.

RED PETUNIAS: If you want a good red petunia you'll have to search a long time to find one better than the hybrid Comanche. We've grown this item for 10 years now and can't find a single fault with it.

Comanche grows 15 inches high and spreads about 18 inches. Flowers are rich scarlet red which do not fade with age. Comanche is ideal for bedding, borders, plant boxes and any place where you want a splash of color.

Another good red petunia is Royal Ruby, growing about 15 inches high. It has the same uses as Comanche. Petunias are better than ever today, and the list is endless: Coral satin, Brass band (chartreuse-yellow), Sugar Plum (Rose-lavender), Glitters (red and white bi-color), to name a few.

Hybrids are a bit more expensive but they're worth it. Plants are more vigorous, make stronger growth, and are more productive. Try raising a few of your own petunias from seed. There's still plenty of time.

RUBBER PLANTS: One of the most indestructible of all house plants is the Ficus or "Rubber" plant. It's actually not a rubber plant but a Fig. Because they are so tough you can find them in most lobbies and many homes. The "Fiddle-leaf fig" is noted for its big fiddle-shaped foliage and it's ideal for growing in tubs. If yours is growing too tall, cut the top out and root it in a gallon jug of water. Browning of leaves is due to poor drainage or overwatering. Brown spots on leaves means a fungus disease. Remove worst leaves and burn. Dust others with sulfur or captan, and keep water off them.

JOHNNY APPLESEED: For those apple growers who are interested in getting their children interested in this fruit, I'd like to offer again, free for the asking, our large Johnny Appleseed coloring book.

This book has been supplied to us by the National Apple Institute, an organization which deserves great credit for furthering the cause of the apple industry, and for making the book available.

If you have a small child give him one of these handsome coloring books. This is the last time it can be offered. Just send me 6 cents for postage, and include your name and address on a piece of paper.

BLUEBERRIES: Is it possible to grow big, fat blueberries in your own backyard? Indeed, if you're willing to make the soil good and humusy before you plant. Blueberries not only like a loose, humusy soil but also one that's acid. You can acidify the soil by adding powdered sulfur or aluminum sulfate.

As for feeding, sulfate of ammonia is good. Apply a tablespoon in a circle close to each plant every 2 or 3 weeks during the growing season. Blueberry plants cannot convert or use the nitrogen in nitrate of soda, so don't use this.

If your plants had yellowish leaves, scatter sulfate of ammonia or sulfur over the surface, about 2 oz. per plant per year. They need this acid plant food.

How about varieties? Some we've tried and like include: Earliblue, Coville, Jersey, Pemberton, Concord.

You'll be interested to know that the U.S.D.A. has crossed two blueberry species Rabbiteye blueberry (Vaccinium ashei) and Highbush blueberry (V. corymbosum) which should give us plants that are heat, disease and drought tolerant.

STARTING PEPPERS: From time to time I'm asked for the name of a pepper which produces peppers instead of bushes. When we do mention a good variety it often fails to do well that year. How come it can do well one year, poorly the next? The reason is the weather. High temperatures, low relative humidity and hot, drying winds at blossom or bud time can mean no fruit.

In pepper growing areas, one or two drying days in the middle of blooming can ruin an entire crop.

Good varieties to try: Vinedale, early, medium-sized and fairly thick flesh. Peppers grow upright, instead of downward. A fine early pepper, quite reliable even in hot weather. Penn Wonder is an early thick-fleshed pepper that bears well under almost any conditions. I'm trying a new one called Peter Piper, a hybrid produced in South Dakota.

It should be a dandy since it does well in that state. If you want a good hot pepper, try Hot Portugal; its flesh is hot enough to melt iron.

Start seed in a loose mixture of sand, perlite, peat or vermiculite. Pepper seed like a lot of heat, 80 or 85 degs. being ideal. After that, move them to a cool bright window. And don't believe that story that you must plant peppers close together for pollination. That's all bunk! A pepper plant can pollinate itself without the aid of any other pepper plant nearby.

Question Box

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D. R. of Marshalls Creek: "Sometimes I think I will give up rose growing. My hybrid teas get black spot disease, mildew and plenty of bugs. Right now they look as if they have frozen back. My neighbor has fine luck with his, and I doubt if he works his half as much as I do mine. Is it because he uses different types or varieties?"

Probably not, although some varieties are more prone to get diseases than others. You might find that he sprays and cares for his more than you realize. Roses are one flower that needs care, a regular spraying schedule, to fight pests before they come.

If you're too busy to give roses the care they need, then you might switch to the Floribunda types. They're about as fool proof a rose as you can get (with possible exception of the old-fashioned types).

Floribundas grow 2 to 3 feet tall and flowers are borne in clusters. They are ideal for borders or hedges, and nearly all of the bloom almost continuously. One of the most prolific of all floribundas is the Betty Prior, a striking two-tone, growing about 4 feet high.

Regardless of which type you grow, all roses do best when sprayed regularly. There are some good rose dusts or sprays which will give you clean blooms all summer long, if used properly.

E. D. of Bartonsville: "Is there a special plant food for hydrangeas? I get nice bushes, but seldom get over a blossom. There must be something this plant needs which our soil doesn't have. What is it?"

It has nothing to do with the soil. Non-blooming is usually due to low winter temperatures which kill the buds. You can avoid this by protecting the plants with a wire fence stuffed with leaves or straw. Another reason for non-blooming is improper pruning.

The florist's hydrangea blooms on wood of the previous season. The flower buds originate near the tips of the canes formed the preceding year. That's why pruning should be done after flowering period is over, or not at all.

F. M. of Augusta: "What's the secret for growing sweet, crisp radishes? Ours are so pithy we can't eat them."

They do best if started early, when the weather's cool. Small round varieties mature more quickly than long ones. Hot taste and pithiness are due to dry soils or dry weather.

All tops and no bottoms is due to planting close together, without thinning the seedlings. Make succession plantings every week or ten days in cool weather of spring and early fall, to avoid having them all come on at once.

Good home garden radishes: Champion, Cherry Belle and Red Boy. All are round types. Icicle is a fine white radish growing 5 inches long.
